BOY TWINS, 6, KIDNAPED IN DORCHESTER

The twins, Robert and Harold Panico, were state wards and living under the care of Mrs. Delia Keenan, who reported the kidnaping to police of the Fields Corner staton.

Mrs. Keenan told police a car with three men and a woman drove up in front of the house, stopped suddenly, while two of the men jumped out and grabbed the two youngsters.

TWINS SCREAMED

As the car sped away, Mrs. Keenon rushed outside after hearing the screams of the twins, and took down the registration number.

Police, in checking the number, said the machine had been rented earlier today from a Dudley street automobile establishment by a 20-year-old West Roxbury youth.

An elderly man was in the car at the time, police were told by the renting company.

This man was later found by police at the West Roxbury address which was given when the car was rented. He was questioned by police.

TURNED OVER TO STATE

Investigation by police revealed that the twins had been born at St. Mary's Infant Asylum, Dorchester. Shortly after the birth of the boys, police said, their mother returned them to the hospital.

Later they were turned over to the State, which placed them under the care of Mrs. Keenan, who has been bringing them up during the past six years.

Dr. Dafoe Aids Fight to Save Baby

Albia, Iowa, May 21 (AP)—Albia's "mite baby," Charles Peter Johnston, had a new "consulting physician" today. He was Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, physician to the Dionne quintuplets.

When Charles failed to gain in weight, Dr. R. A. Smith consulted Dr. Dafoe for advice. Dr. Dafoe suggested a feeder by which food is introduced directly into the baby's stomach through a tube.

HURLEY ADDS $2,921,031 TO BUDGET

Governor Hurley today asked the Legislature for a supplementary state budget of $2,921,301.16, which would set the state tax at $13,000,000, the highest in the past 16 years.

If his total recommendations are approved, the year's budget will be $73,038,061, or approximately half a million dollars more than the last budget of former Governor Curley.

Curley's total for 1936 was $72,697,931, with a state tax of approximately $10,000,000.

WELFARE COSTS UP

In his special message to the Legislature the governor remarked that it has been necessary to effect a drastic increase in the recommendation for the supplies for state institutions because of this factor.

"This item alone," he said, "in the case of institutions caring for welfare inmates, amounts to about $750,000."

Two other measures account for $135,000, he pointed out. One is $60,000 for the recess commission to study taxation. The other is for $75,000 for re-establishment of the commission for development of recreational and industrial resources.

Governor Hurley asked that the temporary 10 per cent surtax on incomes of personal and corporate nature be continued to provide $3,000,000.

Otherwise, the state tax—distributed among municipalities—will total $16,000,000, he said.

He said he thought that the appropriations from the highway fund—gasoline tax—ought to be cut from $7,300,000 to $6,150,000.

REVENUE DIVERSION

In asking diversion of highway revenue to cover general state expenditures, however, the governor declared he was "strongly of the opinion that this diversion was for the best interests of the people of the commonwealth who are obliged to pay taxes to maintain our government."

He recommended increased appropriations of $1,350,000 for improvement of highways. This sum included $800,000 for state highway construction.

Hurley's recommended state tax would be the largest in any year since 1921. Then the record high tax was $14,000,000.

The supplementary budget submitted today will come up for first action next week at a public committee hearing.

Governor Hurley made no mention in his budget of a bond issue, which he previously had recommended to take care of the state's share of projected flood control projects on the Connecticut and Merrimack river valleys.

The Massachusetts share in these projects, legislation for which is still pending in the Legislature, was approximately $2,500,000.

CIO Wins Vote In Steel Test

Pittsburgh, May 21 (AP)—The steel workers' organizing committee, victorious in the nation's first major employe election under the supervision of the government, presented a collective bargaining contract today to the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation.

The contract was received by Chairman H. E. Lewis of the corporation at a 20-minute conference with Chairman Phillip Murray of the steel union, spearhead of John L. Lewis' industrial unionization drive.

Emerging from the conference room, Murray said:

"The meeting was very amiable. Mr. Lewis accepted the result of the election in good spirit."

The two leaders will meet again tomorrow when the contract possibly may be signed. It is expected to be considered first by counsel for the corporation.

More than 24,000 of Jones & Laughlin's mill 27,000 employes voted yesterday by a two and one-half to one margin in favor of having

40-Hour Work Week, 40c Wage in New Bill

Washington, May 21 (AP)—Congressmen closely in touch with labor matters predicted today the administration's general labor legislation would seek to establish a 40-hour work week and a basic minimum wage of 40 cents an hour.

The administration bill to be recommended by President Roosevelt in a special message to Congress, will be introduced by Chairman Connery (D.) Massachusetts, of the House labor committee.

Connery would not discuss details. But other members said the bill probably would be flexible so as to take care of industries having labor problems peculiar to themselves.

The bill, they indicated, would set up a commission to work out details. They said the commission probably would have power to fix maximums in some cases of 35 hours a week and to establish minimum wages in brackets ranging up to a limit of $1500 a year.

The bill was expected to provide a flat prohibition against child labor.

Fore River to Build 3 Passenger Ships

Contracts for three new steamers for the Panama Railroad Shipping Company's service costing approximately $12,000,000 were announced today by officials of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation in Quincy.

It was estimated the new construction here will mean between 4000 and 5000 additional jobs for men in two years.

Contracts were awarded to the Bethlehem Company by the United States War Department on a low bid of $4,040,000 per vessel. Construction will begin next fall.

The new ships will replace the Panama Railroad's present fleet of three in service between New York and Cristobal, with ports of call in Haiti and other West Indies islands. The vessels will each have an over-all length of 486 feet and a deadweight of 6000 tons.

Confesses Thefts on Eve of Her Bridal

An attractive 20-year-old brunette who tearfully told police she was to have been a bride a week from tomorrow, was taken into custody today and held for questioning in connection with a series of 24 thefts.

To police she identified herself as Eleanor F. Dewing, of Frankton avenue, Montello. She is employed by a greeting card concern in Washington street, South End.

For some time she had been living in the Franklin Square House, and it was there the alleged offenses were committed, police said.

Miss Dewing was formally booked for larceny of $650 from Marjory Williams, a downtown secretary and night school student, who also has a room in the Franklin Square House.

"I was only trying to furnish the little apartment my sweetheart and I were to live in after we were married," she sobbed, according to authorities.

The sweetheart is a Brighton youth who is a roller skating rink instructor by day and an elevator operator by night, the girl is quoted as having said.

Detectives claimed that the girl took them to an apartment where they recovered many of the articles that had been missed.

SLIPS FORGED

Most serious of the charges were larceny of bankbooks from Miss Williams.

U. S.-Nazi Clash

ROME — Pope Pius prepares "White Book" to prove Hitler's Nazist regime violates the concordat. Vatican refuses to rebuke Cardinal Mundelein for attack on Germany.

SAN FRANCISCO — Mayor LaGuardia of New York, attending a convention of mayors in San Francisco, replying to Nazi attacks, says: "No decent person can answer or comment on such filth."

BERLIN—The Gestapo, Germany's dreaded secret police, seek source of Cardinal Mundelein's information, with threats of beheading for those found guilty of supplying the information. Nazi press opens new attacks on Catholics and Jews in United States.

Vatican City, May 21 (AP) Pope Pius XI has completed and may publish at any moment a White Book against the German government, prelates said today.

The diplomatic paper has been in preparation for several months, they stated, and is designed to give documentary evidence that any violation of the Vatican-German concordat was on the part of Chancellor Adolf Hitler's regime and not of the Holy See.

(The concordat, signed July 8, 1933, by representatives of the Vatican and Germany, was designed to outline the sphere of the church's activity in Germany, especially with regard to training of youth.

(Church spokesmen since have charged that the Nazi government abridged the concordat by attempting to deny the church the privilege of religious training for Catholic youth.)

Vatican sources said that regardless of what press attacks might be made in Germany on George Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago for his criticism of the Hitler government, the Vatican would not take action.

The prelates reiterated that the cardinal, being head of a diocese, was free to speak to his people as he thought best. There was no

Duke Refused Naval Guard By Britain

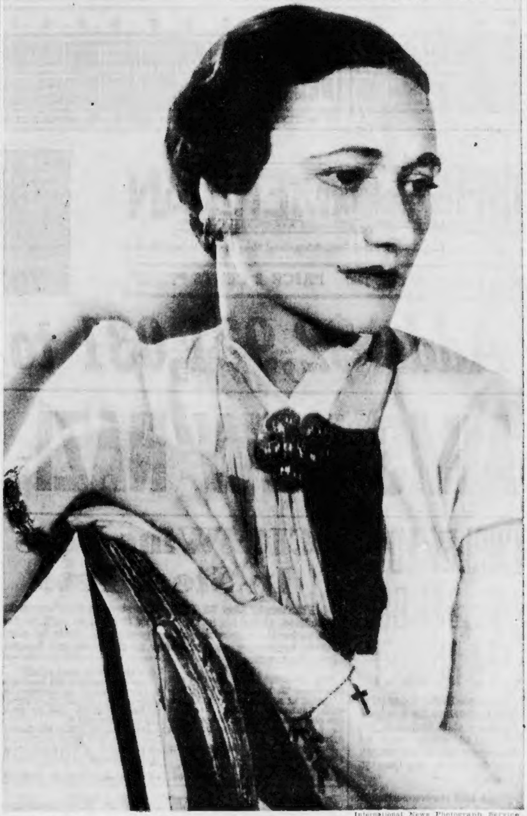
WALLY'S LATEST "PRE-BRIDAL" PHOTOGRAPH WITH GEMS



International News Photograph Service

EXCLUSIVE! Mrs. Wallis Warfield's newest fashion of combing her hair and the exquisite emerald bracelets, earrings and brooch the Duke of Windsor gave to her are shown in this most recent of her posed portraits. It was made within the fortnight at Monts, France, and was dispatched to the United States by plane and fast ship.

Monts, France, May 21 (AP)—The British Government was reported today by a source close to the Duke of Windsor to have denied the former monarch the protection of the British navy for a honeymoon cruise down the coast of civil war-torn Spain.

Windsor, his friend said, was considering turning to a foreign nation for the guarantee of safety which he was unable to get from the naval empire he once ruled.

The British government was said to have refused the request in view of naval incidents, growing out of the Spanish conflict, that increased international tension.

The original honeymoon plan was said to have called for Windsor and his duchess to leave Chateau de Cande immediately after their wedding June 3 for an automobile trip to Biarritz, a French resort on the Bay of Biscay whose waters also wash the Basque coast of northern Spain.

INSISTS ON PROTECTION

After three days at the famed watering place, the royal couple were to cruise on a British yacht down the Spanish coast, through the Straits of Gibraltar to the Mediterranean and the romantic Dalmatian coast of Yugoslavia.

The owner of the yacht which Edward planned to use had insisted upon the naval protection.

There was a possibility the duke might change his honeymoon plans completely, or might seek a foreign yacht and protection for the cruise.

It was pointed out that Prince Regent Paul of Yugoslavia was a close friend of Windsor and might offer a Yugoslavian convoy.

This possibility was considered to be increased by the fact that the duke planned to end the cruise with a visit to the Dalmatian coast, where he and Mrs. Warfield once spent a care-free vacation.

Members of the British royal family, prevented from attending the wedding by the British government, which refused to allow Edward as king to wed Mrs. Warfield, were planning to meet Windsor and his bride at Biarritz to give unofficial approval, at least, to the marriage, a friend of the duke said.

KENT WOULD GO

The Duke of Kent, whom Windsor had wanted as his best man, was thought to be among those planning to be at Biarritz, although it was not disclosed what members of the family might meet the bride.

While the question of finding an Anglican clergyman to perform a religious ceremony, despite the Church of England's objections to Mrs. Warfield's being twice divorced, still was in the air, other preparations for the wedding proceeded smoothly.

Mrs. D. B. Merryman, Mrs. Warfield's favorite "Aunt Bessie" and wedding guest No. 1, was expected at the chateau tonight, along with Dudley Forwood, the duke's equerry, who has been in London on a mission to Buckingham Palace.

Hugh L. Thomas, counselor of the British embassy at Paris, arrived today at the Chateau de Cande.

His presence led some quarters to believe he might be attempting to solve the problem Windsor and Mrs. Warfield have encountered in finding an Anglican prelate to marry them in a religious ceremony despite the constant unwillingness of the Church of England to sanction such a union.

This interpretation was given credence when Herman L. Rogers, American spokesman for the royal couple, announced that arrangements for the religious service "still are under discussion." The duke and his fiancee have expressed their hope of being wed both in civil and religious ceremonies.

Thomas, equerry to Windsor when he was the Prince of Wales, was a luncheon guest at the chateau.

Rogers announced that the June 3 nuptials in the chateau library will be followed by a wedding breakfast for the select circle of guests to whom invitations already have been sent.

Mrs. Merryman arrived at Le Havre aboard the liner President Roosevelt last night. Forwood was to join her today for the motor trip to the romantic Touraine castle.

The Paris hairdresser, Antonio, who takes complete charge of Mrs. Warfield's classic coiffure, was expected Sunday to set a permanent wave that would last for the wedding less than two weeks hence.

Mrs. Warfield was said to have besought Antonio to do his glamorous best for the approaching ceremony.

Antonio also will trim the duke's hair while he is at the chateau.

WITH CHURCH APPROVAL

Should the duke be unable to find an Anglican clergyman willing to perform the religious ceremony on his own responsibility, a source close to Edward said, the Church of England may appoint a minister.

The Anglican appointment became a possibility, this informant said, as a result of three factors:

1—Edward's and Mrs. Warfield's desire to be married in both civil and religious ceremonies.

2—A reported effort on the part of Queen Mother Mary to effect a compromise between the former king and the church over Edward's marriage to the twice-divorced Mrs. Warfield.

3—A desire to ease the question in the minds of some British peers and officials over acceptance of the invitations to the ceremony.

One of Windsor's associates disclosed the couple spent a busy evening telephoning and telegraphing to Paris, London and Vienna in an attempt to arrange the religious service.

Because of the communication with Vienna the Rev. C. H. D. Grimes, rector of the Anglican Church there, again was mentioned as a possibility for the officiating clergyman.

A minor flurry was caused by the arrival at the Grand Hotel at Tours of a Scotch clergyman named Ritchie. The report immediately arose that the Rev. Mr. Ritchie might perform the ceremony but he quickly dispelled any such ideas.

"Is Edward in France?" he asked.

WALLY DESIGNS 30 TROUSSEAU DRESSES

Paris, May 20 (AP)—Mrs. Wallis Warfield was disclosed today in a new role: fashion designer, the love of a king, created the glamorous array of dresses, hostess and cook by designing 30 of the 48 dresses made for the trousseau by Mainbocher, Paris couturier, with her own bridal gown the crowning achievement.

With pencil, paper and bits of fabric and color samples, the former Baltimore debutante, who won the love of a king, created the working guides for most of the glamorous array of dresses.

NEW BRIDAL GOWN

The wedding gown is a long, slim, light blue frock with a short jacket to match. Another jewel of the personally designed portion of her trousseau is a hostess gown of shimmering white satin brocaded with silver and blue.

This dress has a long trained skirt and buttons straight down the front to below the knees. Its fitted jacket has a fancy square neck and outlined applique scrolls.

Among beach frocks Mrs. Warfield originated two button-down-the-front models with reverse necks, puff sleeves and shorts. One is of light blue linen and the other of white linen with a scarf handkerchief of dotted navy blue silk.

PLAYTIME FROCKS

These playtime frocks are double-breasted, the buttons forming triangles. Single rows of buttons close the skirts over the shorts.

Among the sports suits is a model in white tweed with plaid printed blouse and another in yellow tweed with the blouse cross-striped in navy blue, red and light blue.

Among other honeymoon models were afternoon dresses in pale blue crepe and multicolored prints, waltz dresses of rustling taffeta and flowered chiffons.

The evening models include crepes and satin frocks with jackets of silver brocaded paillette, embroidered and sable-trimmed.

Duke Quit to Evade Coronation, Says Shaw

London, May 21 (US)—George Bernard Shaw in a letter, published by the periodical Time and Tide today, intimated his belief that former King Edward VIII abdicated probably because he refused to "endure" the coronation ritual.

The white-bearded Irish sage, terming Edward's forthcoming marriage to Mrs. Wallis Warfield a "diplomatic master-stroke," declared:

"In the coronation, the symbols are not merely obsolete; they symbolize conditions which have been reversed.

"They symbolize the King's investment with powers that he no longer wields and of which it has cost us two revolutions and several regicides to deprive him.

"The clothes used are the clothes of William, the conqueror, and Queen Matilda, transmogrified by generations of costumers into fancy dresses symbolic of nothing but a Russian ballet.

"If I were in the royal succession, I would renounce 50 limited monarchies sooner than go through such a ritual."

Endeavour I Is Due in U.S. Over Week-end

Newport, R. I., May 21 (INS)—Somewhere on the Atlantic, forging valiantly forward under two sheets of sail, a slim British racing craft, Endeavour I, with a crew of 19 men, was struggling today to reach port.

She may arrive over the week-end. That was the opinion among veteran yachtsmen today in the absence of word from the America's cup challenger which lost her convoy ship in a storm a week ago, when a towline parted nearly 1000 miles off Newport.

The power yacht Viva, which had convoyed the racing sloop from Gosport, Eng., to a point west of the Azores before the storm, sailed into Newport yesterday bearing news of the mishap.

Captain Wallace Grint of the Viva expressed his certainty the yacht outrode the 65-mile-an-hour gale. He said he expected Endeavour I to reach Newport Saturday or Sunday. The last he heard from Endeavour I, he said, was in a radio-telephone message Saturday in which she indicated she was plugging ahead on a southwesterly course at six knots an hour. The Viva gave up search for her after spending 40 hours sailing in circles about her last reported position.

Endeavour I, owned by T. O. M. Sopwith, British sportsman, is equipped with a jury rig of headsail and trisail. She was en route here for the second time as a challenger for the America's Cup. Her sister ship, Endeavour II, arrived Tuesday.

Impressive Ceremony Marks Ordination of 27 Priests in Cathedral

BISHOP Presides at RITES

Twenty-seven young graduates of St. John's Seminary in Brighton were ordained as priests of the Roman Catholic Church by Bishop Francis J. Spellman today.

Clad in the white and gold vestments of their church, they received the Holy Orders in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross in the presence of about 3000 friends and relatives.

Choral music for the impressive ceremony was rendered by the Seminary choir, composed of younger seminarians who in future years will take the steps in the age-old order of Melchizadek in which once-ordained, each is "a priest forever."

The Rev. Francis L. Keenan, S.D.T., of St. John's, was master of ceremonies, assisting Bishop Spellman in the solemn rites that raised the postulants to the priesthood.

Mass was celebrated during the service climaxing when each of the newly ordained priests took his part in the Communion.

Following the ordinations, a breakfast was held at the Cathedral rectory and then a reception was held for those who had come to witness the ceremony.

The young priests will say their first public masses Sunday in their respective churches. Later they will be assigned by the cardinal to various churches in the archdiocese.

The newly-ordained priests and the parishes from which they came are as follows:

Rev. Eugene J. Baliol, St. Cecilia's, Back Bay; Rev. Joseph H. Burke, St. James', Haverhill; Rev. John F. Cuffe, St. Ignatius', Chestnut Hill; Rev. James Dalton, St. Peter's, Cambridge; Rev. Edward B. Flaherty, St. Charles', Woburn.

Bishop Francis J. Spellman, auxiliary to Cardinal O'Connell, is seated in the center of the altar steps, wearing his full robes of office and bishop's mitre, while before him in a semi-circle kneel the young graduates of St. John's Seminary who are being ordained into the priesthood of the Roman Catholic Church. The postulants in a moment prostrate themselves while the litany of the saints is recited, and then, one by one, they are invested with the various powers of the priest. Here their stoles—symbol of their holy office—are still worn diagonally from the left shoulder. Later these vestments will be lifted and placed about the neck, the ends crossed on the breast. The other vestments of the priest each postulant has beside him—the chasuble, maniple, each in the gold embroidered white of this joyful day.

Shipworkers Ask Yards Be Reopened

Kearny, N. J., May 21 (AP)—Immediate resumption of operations at the Federal Ship Building and Drydock company was requested today by an association of shipyard employes.

The association, an independent organization not affiliated with the Industrial Union of Marine and Ship Workers of America, a CIO group, voted last night to petition the management to open the plant, closed three days by a combination strike and lockout.

Lamont Drops Hint Of "Lindy" Return

New York, May 21 (AP)—Speculation that Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh might soon end their self-imposed exile in England received impetus today from the words of Thomas W. Lamont, banker and close friend of the famous flying couple.

"I hope, indeed, that these two distinguished Americans will in due time find it possible to return and live their lives in the land of their birth and choice," Lamont said last night in an address at a banquet in commemoration of the Lindbergh flight."

Moslems War in Lucknow

Lucknow, India, May 21 (AP)—Clashes between rival Moslem sects brought down a curfew here today after one Hindu was killed and two others injured at Shikarpur.

Lynn Heel Factory Head Burned; 25 Girls Flee Fire

The president of a Lynn wood heel concern was badly burned and 28 girl and men employes of his plant were forced to flee today when a box of celluloid became ignited in a Union street factory.

The injured man is Joseph Fireman, 45, president and treasurer of the Amalgamated Wood Heel Company, which occupies the third floor of the brick building. He was burned on the face and arms.

Three men workers had to smash down the unused rear door of the place to lead the 25 girls to safety when the flames cut off escape by the front exit.

Although the Broad street fire engine house is directly across from the building and firemen were on the scene speedily, damage of $1000 was caused and it took half an hour to extinguish the blaze.

Reunion Tonight By Newton Church

Headed by the Rev. John A. Sheridan, I. P. P., a large committee completed preparations today for a parish reunion of Our Lady's Church, Newton, to be held tonight in Newton High School auditorium.

N. H. Shoreline Open Tomorrow

New Haven, Conn., May 21 (AP) The New Haven Railroad announced today it expects to have the shore line connecting New York and Boston open for travel tomorrow morning. The line has been closed to travel since Monday, when fire virtually destroyed the trestle over the Lieutenant river at Old Lyme.

Reconstruction work has been rushed, and it was announced that the reopenin gof service will be with a single track over the trestle.

Ireland Divided Over Benefits of Building Boom, Lake Finds

TENANTS PREFER HUTS TO FLATS

Galway, Ireland

The amber hills of Clare lay ahead in evening sunlight. Behind, as we turned north toward Galway, Limerick's soldierly roofs, church steeples and warehouses lay brooding in shadow along the Shannon. Young Ireland was riding home on bicycles, bareheaded boys in golf hose and girls showing glimpses of silken knee.

Beyond Ennis Abbey farmers were plowing belatedly in the evening, turning furrows which looked moist and black after recent rains. Gaunt ruins of old castles, angular corners or parts of broken towers, stood against the skyline—the pegs upon which the fabric of Irish history is hung.

Past Gort and its maze of unmarked crossroads, the fields grew steadily more stony, outcroppings of shale and limestone that looked like bubbles boiling in the pastures. Until, at Ardhahan, the land was a spidery web high tumbling walls which ran at interlocking angles as far as the eye could reach—less property boundaries than linear piles of rubble and monuments to the toil of generations of Galway men.

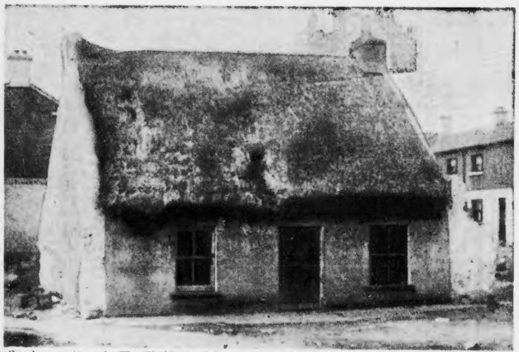
My entrance into the City of Galway was at a depressing time in late, blue-lit evening and the town loomed as a dull silhouette of low-roofed buildings.



Specimen cottage in The Gladdagh, Galway, allowed by the Free State government to stand as a relic of the old regime amid the modern apartments which now house the Gladdagh folk. These two-story dwellings, seen beside the eaves of the Gladdagh cottage, rent for $1 a week, and were built by government funds.

But in the morning the sun was out and the town proved to be a charming Mediterranean mixture of Naples, with stepped roofs and blended earth-baked color, or Valladolid, with rambling streets where carts and cars rubbed hubs and people stood off the curb to let each other pass.

SCRUBBED COUNTRY

The shop keepers were busy scrubbing their pavements with steaming water, the first duty of a Galway day, so that the flaggings were clean as a Dutch dresser. Ireland is a clean country where one seldom runs across the careless filth of rural sections in other European countries. Squalor, where it exists in the slum regions of its cities or towns, is tactfully hidden. And even there Ireland is cleaning up.

The Claddagh, for example—that famous medieval section of Galway where fishfolk considered to be "original Irish", preserve ancient customs and live in an aristocracy of poverty. It is almost gone.

A few dwarfed, white-washed cabins with their sway-back roofs still stand, but the government's demolishing-crews are busy, and everywhere else the Claddagh ("The Beach") is a section of modern, two-story tenements, made of gray and rose cement, into which a bewildering fishing population has been poured, willynilly, by the Free State Housing Commission.

If you think that the comparative luxury of pin-neat and sanitary quarters delights these simple, ancient people, you have another guess coming.

I moved among them today, talking with occasional bent-backed crones and seamed grandsires, who unanimously moaned for their old, cramped and rush-roofed huts, where for centuries Claddagh folk had lived rent-free and fished their living from the sea or gathered crops of kelp, sea-spun and drift-weed.

NEW LIFE COSTLY

A stooped elder who sifted his English through a Gaelic screen told me how the Corrib river had tumbled past his door—it is still tumbling, and so full of salmon that the women used to catch them in their market baskets. Whole families of Claddagh folk had launched their boats and gone to sea for weeks at a time, bringing home their hauls to the Claddagh market, where Galway housewives came down to buy hake and herring. Life had been ample.

But now, said the rheumy eyed and hand-quivering elder, a mysterious "They" had ripped out the cabins, allowing each owner $50 for his property, and moved each family into roomy, well-lit comfort, charging them $1 and $1.50 a week.

The people, said the old man, could not pay that much and the whole community was hopelessly in arrears and fearful of eviction.

Near the approach to this ancient settlement there stands one lonely-looking and very solitary hut of the original Claddagh colony, surrounded by orderly rows of new apartments—the one cabin which will be permitted to stand after all the rest are demolished.

This will serve as a sort of museum relic and sentimental reminder to visitors of what the Claddagh once was, the last remnant of a medieval time when the Anglo-Normans forced the native Irish to live outside the town walls in a kind of Gaelic ghetto.

ENJOYS BUILDING BOOM

Elsewhere the city of Galway is enjoying a brisk building boom, more than 2000 houses having been erected within a period of five years to cope with "the flight from farm to town" along the Connemara coast.

I recall the elderly Dublin business man who remarked several weeks ago how he had delighted in the view of Galway Harbor from Salt Hill, near "O'Flaherty's House." His description of the grassy slopes that led down to the little inlets and harbors was most lyric.

But when I went there today the rustic scene was a graduated line of new homes, built in a severe, standardized style and leaving no peep toward the sea, except along the side streets. Some of these have been built under the "Small houses acquisition act" and some under the "Working Classes Homes act," a sequence of housing legislation which is confusing to the foreign visitor.

Galway opinion of this building rash differs. For example, John Carlan, the young, strapping and clean-jawed editor of the Galway Weekly Observer, told me with enthusiasm that this was part of the Fianna Fail party's social revolution, to prepare the stage for the Industrial era that was soon to come.

OTHER VIEW

Building gave the jobless work and the houses gave them homes. The trend, he said, was from the "uneconomic farm holdings" of the rocky lands, to the towns so that Galway had grown within five years from 14,000 to 23,000, an invasion of "dissatisfied country folk."

Cattle raising and the "man-starving" predominence of pasture-land, said he, is "Ireland's economic curse."

Down Market street at the office of the Connacht Tribune, a weekly with 53,000 circulation through adjoining counties, an equally young and alert-looking editor named Sean Kenney, told a radically different story.

This "headlong" building epidemic, said he, was fine as a temporary means of priming business and for housing the homeless, but where was employment coming from to insure the new tenant's rental? As a stout Fine Gael man, he predicted an inevitable calamity and the wholesale eviction of the new householders.

"It is an audacious, spendthrift policy which points straight toward ruin," said Kenney, and I thought how much it sounded like the echo of a political alarm I had so recently heard in America.

Still, there is the promise of employment looming for Galway's jobless in the $1,000,000 harbor scheme which passed the Dail last month and begins next June to deepen the shipping channel and to construct a system of piers.

So within a year the ocean liners and freighters which formerly were forced to stand in outside waters to receive their passengers and cargoes from lighters, will steam boldly into the harbor and take their loads from the wharfs.

DELIGHTFUL LANES

After the mathematical squareness of Limerick's downtown architecture, it is a delight to wander through irregular Galway lanes where each house has an individual character and where midget shops jostle giants on a plane of good natured equality.

There is a curious, mixed-prosperity among the stores along Shop Street, so that one window may display a few eggs, a handful of onions and a can or two, and the next one a full line of tailored costumes, expensive boots and female fripperies.

There are traces of the strong Spanish influence which shaped the middle history of the city.

Many an old medieval house has an arabesque balcony and Moorish windows and more than one shop looks as though the stern end of a Spanish galleon had been bricked between its walls.

There is even a curious legend that Columbus turned north from Spain to pick up a Galway sailor on his way to discover the new world, so that D. H. Keller, the Irish travel writer, remarks with a naive solemnity rarely found in his race:

"Surely every true American should feel profound gratitude to this solitary Galway mariner and be stirred to a loyal affection for his town."

Down a back street which reels drunkenly at odd angles and where there are fabric-stalls with bolts of vivid poplin and speckled tweeds piled beside the doors, lies the tragic ruin of James Lynch Fitzstephen's house.

There is only the front facade of this ancient mansion now. A window overhangs the street and below, fitted into the masonry, a tablet states:

"This ancient memorial to the stern and unbending justice of the chief magistrate of this city, James Lynch Fitzstephen, elected mayor A. D. 1493, and who condemned and executed his own guilty son, Walter, on this spot, has been restored to its ancient site A. D. 1854 by approval of the Town commissioners."

HUNG OWN SON

The legend, much prized as a chef d'oeuvre of Irish tragedy, tells how the ancient Mayor had induced a Spanish noble to let his son come to Galway, guaranteeing the safety of the youth. And how, during an unaccounted-for quarrel, young Walter Fitzstephen had killed the Spanish boy. So the Irish father sat in judgment over his own son, condemning him to death, and finding no Irishman to carry out the sentence, hanged him from his own window.

Irish writers claim this deed as the origin of the expression "Lynch law," though the United States, which employs that type of "law" almost exclusively, contests that the term traces to a famous "hanging judge" named Lynch.

There was a pedlar's cart across the street selling Carigeen, a crinkly kind of sea food which is found along the coast—Irish moss it is called by the housewives who make from it the milky, gelatinous pudding, which resembles junket.

A boy came by riding a dun-colored Connemara pony with a little girl riding pillion and clinging tight under his arm pits. A Galway newsboy shouted the evening journal in Irish. A strong-faced Civic Guard strolled by in his blue, tailored tunic. An afternoon calm settled over the city. It was tea time in Galway.

Austen Lake's next article on "Ireland Today" will appear exclusively in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

'Trembling Bandits' Hold Up Andover Road-Stand

Andover, May 21—Three armed and "trembling bandits" who held up a dozen customers and employes in a roadside restaurant on the Andover-Lawrence highway at midnight were sought by police throughout the State today.

The trio, with drawn guns held in shaking hands, warned the eight customers, including two women, to remain seated and quiet at their tables.

Then one bandit forced Matthew Hedger, of South Main street, Andover, a counterman, to lead him downstairs to a small office, where Charles Mayne, of North Reading, the manager, was working on his accounts.

Pressing the gun against Mayne's ribs, the thug forced him to open a strong box in a nearby safe, the door of which was open. Scooping up $264.50 from the box, the bandit forced the two to march upstairs, where his two confederates were covering the patrons.

According to police, only one attempt was made to rob the customers. One bandit walked over to one man and asked gruffly:

"How much have you got on you?"

"About $1.50," came the quiet reply.

Then making a slight gesture with his gun, as if in disgust, the bandit snarled:

"You can keep it."

Then the trio backed out of the doorway, jumped into their car and sped away toward Reading.

Husband of Dead Bangor Woman Charges Murder

Manila, P. I., May 21 (AP)—The Tribune quoted John Wilson today as saying in an interview that he believed his wife had been slain in her apartment and was not a suicide as police announced after an investigation.

Mrs. Wilson, a native of Bangor, Maine, was found shot to death Wednesday morning.

"I am still convinced Mrs. Wilson did not commit suicide . . . She was murdered . . . to make sure she would not talk," the newspaper quoted Wilson as saying.

"I am not finished with this. I cannot accept the police theory of suicide. I have retained the best men I could find and we are going ahead with our own investigation. Mrs. Wilson had a number of enemies in this town—not only her enemies, but mine."

Wilson was quoted as saying he was mystified by the fact police did not find his fingerprints on the pistol near the body. He said he examined the pistol prior to the arrival of police. Police said only fingerprints of Mrs. Wilson were found on the pistol.

'ROBINSON FOR HIGH COURT' DRIVE GAINS

Washington, May 21 (INS)—The Senate drive to elevate Sen. Joseph T. Robinson, its majority leader, to the Supreme Court spread to the House today.

The Arkansas delegation in that body endorsed him and the Virginia delegation called a caucus in his behalf. The action of the Virginia delegation marked the first time within the memory of congressional historians that a House delegation met to endorse a senator from a different state for appointment to the Supreme Court.

The Senate contest over President Roosevelt's Supreme Court bill meanwhile was sidetracked. Administration leaders said they were waiting on a report from the opposition group on the Senate judiciary committee, which voted to report it unfavorably to the Senate.

WAIT APPOINTMENT

Undercover reports held the delay was due to both factions entering an agreement to postpone action until after the President fills the vacancy created by the retirement of Associate Justice Willis Van Devanter.

Leaders of both sides conceded their endorsement of Robinson might embarrass the President because the veteran Arkansas Senator doesn't quite meet the requirements laid down months ago by Mr. Roosevelt for his high judicial appointees. He is a conservative and will be 65 in August.

Despite this, the slogan on Capitol Hill was: "Joe deserves it."

Delayed action on the bill, aside from the Robinson boom, was welcomed by both sides. Opponents welcomed the delay because they wish to see what type of man the President appoints to fill the vacancy created by Van Devanter.

SOUR ON BILL

His failure to name Robinson would be construed by them, one of them said, as a tremendous weapon against the bill. They believe Robinson's friends in the Senate would sour on creating still more vacancies for the President to fill.

Opposition leaders were fighting against the two-judge plan. Senator Burke (D.), Nebraska, one of their spokesmen, said:

"The calm on at present is largely on the surface. The administration is putting pressure on senators who might change their votes on the court issue.

GIRL ARRESTED IN 24 THEFTS

drawal slips to get the cash out of three banks.

She had only $16.75 in cash on her person when taken into custody. Police said she explained she had used whatever money she could get to furnish the little apartment she hoped to occupy as a bride.

According to the police version, too, the girl took detectives to a number of pawnshops and pointed them out as places she had disposed of a number of pieces of jewelry and other trinkets looted from Franklin Square House rooms.

The case "broke" today after an investigation which Sergeant Harvey Yates had been carrying on since the first thefts were reported from the Franklin Square House in the middle of January. The thefts continued until April 5.

Through the handwriting on the bank withdrawal slips and a comparison of the girl's handwriting, George F. Smith, police headquarters expert, decided on the girl's probable guilt.

She was traced to her apartment, police claimed, and there admitted guilt when faced with the writing exhibits.

In the apartment, according to authorities, were quantities of linen taken from the dormitory rooms. A trunk contained what was to have been the girl's wedding trousseau, they said.

PARTY LEADERS MOVE TO PASS RELIEF BILL

Washington, May 21 (INS)—The powerful organization of Representative Pat Boland, Democratic whip of the House, was called into action today as party leaders strove to roll up an impressive majority for the $1,500,000,000 relief appropriation requested by President Roosevelt.

Informed by the White House that Mr. Roosevelt was anxious to have the full amount appropriated speedily, the Boland organization began a systematic canvass of members.

Leaders predicted that the House would cast not more than 100 votes to reduce the relief fund to $1,000,000,000. They declared that less than this number will vote to boost it either to $2,200,000,000 or $3,000,000,000.

The administration apparently had accepted the rider of Representative Woodrum (D.) of Virginia, requiring Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, to supervise expenditures so the $1,500,000,000 or any other amount given him will last for the full year beginning July 1.

Final passage of the relief measure today was doubtful. A score of members plan to propose amendments.

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and all other rights reserved.)

Our friend, Mr. Turp, of Brooklyn, writes:

Brooklyn, N. Y., May 17, 1937.

Dear Sir:

My wife Ethel was listzning to the radio the other night and some guy told a joke and then an awful lot of laughing came from the studio and my wife ses Joe I want to talk to you about something.

Damon Runyon

I ses make it easy on yourself and she ses who is doing that laughing? I ses it is people in the studio where the guy is broadcasting from and she ses why are they laughing at? I ses they are laughing at his joke and she ses why? I ses well maybe they think the joke is funny and she ses what is funny about it?

My wife Ethel ses do you see me laughing? I ses no. She ses are you laughing? I ses no. She ses do you feel like laughing? I ses no, but look Ethel I don't want no arguments with you tonight because I got a kind of a headache.

She ses I am not looking for no argument. She ses Joe this is something that has been worrying me a long time. She ses Joe every time I turn on the radio some guy is telling jokes and people are laughing fit to kill, but I never see anything in the jokes to laugh about and I have been wondering if I am dumb or what.

I ses Ethel honey you are not near as dumb as your sister Hazel, I ses you are not even as dumb as your old lady. I ses Honey don't you worry about things like that.

BROADCASTER'S PALS

I ses maybe those people in the studio are pals of the guy who told the joke and they laugh because they want people listening to think he is going good. They want people listening in to think he is funny. I ses maybe they are just shillabers.

She ses do you mean they are trying to influence people listening in to think the guy is funny? I ses well I guess that is the general idea. She ses how many people are in that studio? I ses I don't know for sure, but maybe a hundred or more.

She ses do they pay to get in? I ses not as far as I know. I ses I never heard of a shillaber paying to get in anything he was shilling for. I ses Ethel I told you I got a kind of a headache and I don't want no argument tonight.

She ses well I paid for my radio and I don't think it is justice for a few people setting in a studio free of charge to try to influence me into thinking some guy is funny by laughing that way. She ses I think they ought to let me decide for myself.

IS THAT JUSTICE?

She ses I don't think it is justice to a lot of other people listening in either because it confuses them to hear people laughing at something that does not sound funny to them and makes them think they have no sense of humor of their own.

She ses do you think that is justice Joe and I ses no but then there is no justice about anything in this world.

Well the guy on the radio told some more jokes and the people in the studio laughed their heads off but my wife Ethel did not laugh and neither did I and every time he told a joke she ses is that funny and I had to say no.

Finally, my wife Ethel ses this is a great mystery and I am going to see if I can solve it. She ses Joe maybe the trouble is neither of us know what is funny. She ses maybe we ought to be laughing like anything the same as the people in the studio.

So she went to the telephone and called up Missus Burke who lives up Bedford avenue a piece and ses Missus Burke have you been listening to the radio? Missus Burke ses yes then my wife ses did you hear so-and-so just now and Missus Burke ses yes.

My wife ses have you been laughing, and Missus Burke ses no, why should I have been laughing with six children to look after and my old man still out of work and on a drunk?

NO ONE LAUGHED

My wife ses well maybe you are not a fair judge Missus Burke and then she called up ten different people in the neighborhood one after the other and asked them all if they had heard so-and-so, and if they had been laughing at his jokes, and all of them ses yes they had heard him all right, but no they had not been laughing and what of it?

A fellow by the name of Jack Clabby who works for the subway kept my wife on the telephone ten minutes telling her how he was going to get the guy who told those jokes if it was the last act of his life.

So my wife ses to me well anyway I am glad I am no dumber than anybody else in Brooklyn and I think you ought to write a letter to those radio people telling them it is not justice to have those people laughing in the studio to influence us to thinking something is funny when it is not so.

WIFE STILL BAFFLED

Then she got another station on the radio and a dame with bronchitis sang a song and when she finished there was a wonderful lot of applause from wherever the dame was singing from and my wife ses do you think that song was worth all that applause?

I ses no, not in my book, and she ses I think I will call up some more people and ask them about this too, and I ses look Ethel I think we better go to bed.

So we went to bed and in the middle of the night she shook me and ses what was that crack you made about me not being as dumb as my sister Hazel or my mother, and I ses all right Ethel you are as dumb as they are at that, and while she was thinking this over I went back to sleep.

Yours truly,

JOE TURP.

Doomed Man Grins As Giants Win

Kansas City, May 21 (AP)—Dudley (Hardface) Barr, 39-year-old Negro who shared his last meal of fried chicken, lemon pie and ice cream with another Negro awaiting execution, was hanged here today for the slaying of Walter Milton, Negro.

One of his last requests was for the score of the New York Giant-St. Louis Cardinal baseball game yesterday. Informed the Giants won, he grinned broadlay.

PENNSYLVANIA GIRL'S JAUNT HALTED HERE

Plans of two girls who were just bored to death with their native Lancaster, Pa., and who took a 15-hour bus ride to Boston for a change of scenery were completely upset by police today.

The runaways, 16 years old each, gave the names of Ruth Dorwart and Marion Paparo. Both have jobs in factories in Lancaster and they had enough money to "keep going," but that didn't prevent police from locking them up after telephone calls to their parents.

The pair were taken into custody at Scollay square this morning, later remanded to the House of Detention after a session in juvenile court.

"You meanies have spoiled everything," Ruth told the police. "We were going to pay a surprise visit to my grandfather who lives here. Now look what you've done."

Questioning elicited the information that grandfather is Nicola Valentino of Lowell street, North End. Police asked him what he'd like to do. He said he'd like to send the girls home again.

But when Ruth heard that she wouldn't have anything to do with grandpa at all. So police called the parents and they said they'd come and get the girls very quickly.

"Somebody's always interfering," little Ruth said tearfully. "If you lived in Lancaster all your life you'd get sick of it too. If we were police and you were us, we wouldn't bother you."

"Just let us go and we'll go and hire a hotel room while we look around," she pleaded. "We have enough money."

Authorities wouldn't listen to the argument, but they took the girls to Paul Revere's house in the North End anyhow. Then back to the detention rooms.

GIRL PINS AXE MURDER ON BOY

Jersey City, N. J., May 21 (INS)—Gladys MacKnight, cool-eyed, 17-year-old high school graduate, today turned on her former sweetheart, Donald Wightman, 19, and branded him the hatchet-slayer of her mother, Mrs. Helen MacKnight.

She did this through her lawyer, R. Lewis Kennedy, who in his opening address to the jury said Gldays woul dtake the stand to support this statement.

Gladys thus repudiated the confession she signed at police headquarters in Bayonne on July 31 in which she admitted she struck the blows that killed her mother while Donald held Mrs. MacKnight.

Wightman, a tall, well-built youth, leaned forward as if he were about to leap as Attorney Kennedy outlined to the jurors the story Gladys will tell on the stand. One of the bailiffs put a restraining hand on his arm.

2 Youths Burned To Death in Blast

Barbourville, Ky., May 21 (INS)—Two boy "hitch-hikers," Walter Hopkins, 12, and Dee Scott, 10, were burned to death today when their clothes were ignited by flaming gasoline hurled from a garbage truck which exploded and caught fire.

The truck blast occurred in front of the Barbourville fire station. The panic-stricken boys, clothes aflame, leaped from the truck and ran. Firemen ran after them in an effort to fight the flames, but caught them too late.

Merivale and Bride On Way Abroad

New York, May 21 (INS)—Philip Merivale and Gladys Cooper, his bride of three weeks, were en route to England today aboard the Berengaria. The British actor wed Miss Cooper in Chicago.

The couple will spend the summer in England and Scotland reading scripts in the hope of finding a suitable play for their appearance this fall.

Pershing "Better" After Exhaustion

London, May 21 (AP)—Gen. John J. Pershing, U. S. envoy to the coronation of King George VI, left for Paris today after stating he was "quite recovered" from the fatigue which caused him to cancel attendance at the dinner of the Pilgrim Society.

Lawrence Tax Cut 80 Cents to $36.80

Lawrence, May 21 (AP)—The board of assessors today announced a tax rate of $36.80 for 1937, a reduction of 80 cents from last year's rate.

Chums Reach End of Runaway Road In Boston

PROBE REVERE MAN'S DEATH

Revere police started an investigation of circumstances surrounding the death of William H. McElaney, 54-year-old World War veteran, of Hitchborn street, Revere.

The body was turned over to Medical Examiner William J. Brickley, who asked police today to start the probe. Brickley said McElaney died from a seven-inch fracture of the skull which was caused by either a fall or being struck by a flat object.

Detective James Longo quoted Mrs. McElaney as saying her husband came home around 5:30 yesterday morning and after stating he felt ill, went to bed. She called Dr. Harry Masters of Revere that night and he pronounced the veteran dead, Longo said.

Two Revere men, said by police to have brought McElaney home from a Shirley avenue restaurant, were questioned.

Capone's Brother Injured in Crash

Chicago, May 21 (INS)—Matthew Capone, 28-year-old brother of Al Capone, today was in a hospital with serious injuries suffered when his automobile blew a rear tire, turned over and struck a brick building in suburban Cicero.

The former Villanova University law student's injuries were listed as severely lacerated face, possible skull fracture, internal injuries and a broken right wrist.

Canada May Get Air Race

Dick Merrill, Mattern Cable Invitations

Chicago, May 21 (US)—The proposed transatlantic air race commemorating Colonel Lindgergh's epoch-making solo hop to Paris ten years ago, may be started from Canada, Jimmy Mattern, noted speed flyer, disclosed in a statement made here.

Mattern revealed that he and Dick Merrill, famous transatlantic pilot, cabled an invitation to start the race in Canada to the French air ministry. The message was sent after a conference with Canadian officials in Toronto, Mattern said.

The flyer boarded a plane here for Los Angeles where he was to receive his new $75,000 Lockheed No. 12 plane which he will pilot across the Atlantic if the prize contest is held. He was accompanied by his bride, the former Dorothy Harvey, whom he married Tuesday.

After the Toronto conference, attended by Canadian industrialists and financiers, Dick Merrill left for Ottawa to secure additional support for the plan to bring the air derby to Canada. Montreal was considered a likely place for the take-off.

Mattern said there was a possibility Dick Merrill would fly a Canadian entry if the race were held.

JUDGE WITNESS IN OWN COURT

Fall River, May 21—Because he recognized the defendants as persons who had appeared before him in court, he decided to watch them when he saw them mingling in a crowd of churchgoers, Special Justice Frank M. Silvia testified in his own court here today.

The men, charged with larceny from the person, were Frank Harris of Boston and Frank Costello of Boston and Brockton.

Judge Silvia testified he saw the defendants as he came out of the Portuguese church of Santo Christo. He said he saw someone grab Costello who then attempted to pass a wallet to Harris. The special justice said he chased Harris and caught him.

Both men pleaded not guilty and the court found probable cause and ordered them held in $3000 each for the grand jury.

Dole 'Silks' Stir Haverhill Storm

Haverhill, May 21—Revelation that welfare recipients are buying silk stockings on relief money drew a storm of protest today as a governmental investigation of the welfare department drew near a close.

Alderman Edward W. Peters, head of the department, said he would take no action until the probe ends. The department was also under fire for paying an investigator $25 transportation allowance while she was on vacation.

PRIMARY BILL TO SENATE

Action toward the immediate repeal of the Massachusetts pre-primary convention law today went to the Senate following a favorable vote in the House of Representatives.

After 48 hours of consideration, the House voted 109 to 101 for repeal, thus supporting Governor Charles F. Hurley, who made the issue part of his inaugural recommendation.

The vote by the House was a reversal of one taken last Tuesday. The action came as a shock to the Republican forces in the Legislature, and Representative Philip G. Bowker of Brookline claimed that members of the Republican caucus were joining the Democratic minority at the last minute, thus repudiating their caucus votes.

The repeal bill was filed by Lieutenant-Governor Francis E. Kelly, who had been a victim of the last pre-primary convention.

Pope Writes New Attack on Nazi

thought in the Vatican of repudiating him, they said.

La Guardia Hurls Fiery New Blast at Hitler

San Francisco, May 21 (US)—Fiery little Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York, visiting here, lashed fiercely at a renewed Nazi verbal bombardment of himself and his city government released to newspapers by the official news agency.

Nazi controlled news organs headlined details of a purported "sex expose" among Brooklyn high school students commenting that such a display of "immorality is evidence of what is possible under the eyes of the Jew LaGuardia."

With characteristic pungency, LaGuardia, when informed of the Nazi blast, declared:

"No decent person can answer or even comment on such filth.

"Statements such as those made in the German press can' only be referred to Commissioner Binger, who has charge of sewage disposal in New York city."

The story in the German press, released by the Deutsche News Bureau, official Nazi agency, strongly emphasized that birth control devices had been sold to high school children in Brooklyn.

ENDORSES BISHOP

(Sixteen druggists and clerks were arrested Wednesday, but none was charged with sale of the articles to the students.)

Further, the German newspapers said "Brooklyn is inhabited largely by Jews and Catholics."

Mayor LaGuardia, who is here for the National Conference of Mayors, militantly replied:

"This is the natural reaction from the lashing given them by Cardinal Mundelein in Chicago, a few nights ago. Cardinal Mundelein told the truth about the Nazi government. And it must be remembered that every time the truth is told about them, they descend to new all-time levels of filth and vilification.

"Of course, what I am saying refers to the neurotic German officials, not to the fine, clean, decent German people whom they have victimized."

SECOND ROW

This is not the first time New York's mayor has been the violent target of attacks by the Nazi press. Chancellor Hitler's newspapers opened a spectacular international episode last March when LaGuardia in a speech called the Nazi Fuehrer a "brown-shirted fanatic."

At that time the German government formally protested LaGuardia's attack on the chancellor. Secretary of State Cordell Hull sent official regrets to Berlin expressing the hope that those who participated in the verbal controversy would "soon reach the conclusion that it would be to the best interests of both countries for them to find other subjects which can be discussed more temperately."

Dreaded Secret Police Trail Cardinal Informer

Berlin, May 21 (AP)—The powerful Gestapo, German secret state police, began today to seek detailed information on German sources from which, it believed, George Cardinal Mundelein obtained the information for his castigation of third Reich's attitude toward the Catholic church.

Reproductions of purported American newspaper accounts, published here, said the Chicago cardinal obtained his data about "immorality' 'trials of German Catholic monks and lay brothers and other material on the church-state situation from German residents, relayed through the Franciscan Sisters in Illinois.

MA YBE BEHEADED

If the identity of any of these Germans can be established, it was learned ,they will be punishable under a German law which classes as treason the circulation of "false reports" likely to do damage to the Fatherland.

The penalty for treason is the headsman's axe.

What is regarded as even more probable is that the state will move against organizations, rather than individuals, if it can establish what it deems to be culpability. Many religious orders own property which might be confiscated.

"It probably never occurred to him he was uncovering a case of treason" involving the transmission of "false information about important decisions of the state," the newspaper Nachtausgabe commented on intimations of how the Cardinal obtained his information.

SAYS INFORMATION FALSE

"Representatives of lay orders who sent the false information to the United States," it said, "know full well the extent of sex crimes among the Franciscans.

"They know also that sentences were inflicted only on the grounds of confessions by guilty lay brothers. They, therefore, have deliberately transmitted false reports to foreign countries for purposes of damaging the German Reich."

Meanwhile, Germany's controlle' Nazi press renewed its broadsides against American Jews and Catholics today and demanded that the Vatican "call to order" George Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago for attacks on Adolf Hitler.

The outbursts were extended to include not only the cardinal but Catholics and Jews generally and Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, of New York, in particular.

Under the caption of "Hair-Raising Immorality in New York High Schools," the official news agency distributed an item throughout Germany describing an investigation into charges of immorality among students of Brooklyn high schools.

"This action by the board of education," the dispatch said, "is further evidence of what unheard-of things are possible in this city under the eyes of the Jew, LaGuardia."

LINKED TO GANGSTERS

The agency said Brooklyn is inhabited "chiefly by Jews and Catholics," and added that the investigation showed "high school pupils were working hand in hand with gangsters."

(An investigation is being made by District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan of Brooklyn into what he termed immorality among high school students in that borough.)

The press generally insisted on a definite showdown with the Vatican over Cardinal Mundelein's description of the Reichs Chancellor as "an Austrian paperhanger, and a poor one at that" and of German trials of priests and lay brothers on immorality charges as worse propaganda than the atrocity tales of the World War.

Merchant Marine 'Needs Labor Pact'

C. H. S. Pearsall, president of the Propeller Club of the United States, and the Colombian Steamship Company, today declared a permanent agreement between employers and labor was necessary if the American merchant marine was to prosper.

POPE'S HEALTH IMPROVES

London, May 21 (INS)—Recent improvement in the health of Pope Pius has been maintained, the London Daily Telegraph reported today in a Vatican City dispatch, despite earlier advices the Pontiff's health had been causing concern.

The newspaper said the Pope will make a world-wide radio broadcast to mark his 80th birthday May 31, when he opens the Pontifical Academy of Science.

In today's classified columns you will find a coice selection of rooms that will meet all your requirements as to price, description and location.

Mundelein, Nazi Foe, Is German

Chicago, May 21—The man who launched one of the bitterest attacks as yet sustained by the Nazi German government is himself of German extraction. George William Cardinal Mundelein, a product, along with Al Smith, of New York's Bowery, has repeatedly pointed with pride to his German ancestry.

The 64 year old prince of the church recently stated that his great-great grandfather, more than 100 years ago was among the founders of the first German-Catholic Church in the United States.

PLANS ADVANCE FOR ARMISTICE

London, May 21 (AP)—Proposals for an armistice in the Spanish civil war and for the withdrawal of foreign volunteers moved towards actuality today with assurances that no European power outside Spain will object.

Germany and Italy were said to have been stumbling blocks to plans for restoring peace in Spain, but well informed diplomatic personages said both now would join general discussions.

The British government, through its own ambassadors, has been seeking to learn the attitude of foreign nations on the armistice for some time. It was reliably disclosed that they have encountered no refusals for active consideration of the plan.

A special technical committee of the 27-nation "hands off Spain" group discussed the possibility of withdrawals of foreign troops from the civil war today and pressed the delegates to obtain their government's flat approval of an armistice.

KING REVIEWS BRITISH FLEET AS GUNS ROAR

Portsmouth, Eng., May 21 (INS)—Whipped by a keen wind, King George VI visited four selected British warships today following his coronation review of the British fleet and visiting foreign warships—the greatest armada of fighting craft ever assembled.

The King journeyed from the royal yacht, Victoria and Albert, to the four warships aboard an admiral's barge while Queen Elizabeth watched from the bridge of the yacht, which had remained anchored with the fleet during the night.

With the historic order, "splice the main brace!" King George ordered a double ration of rum served to the entire naval rank and file. The yacht returned to Portsmouth Navy Yard at 2 p. m., and the royal couple left for London.

Guns of the fleet boomed a farewell 21-gun salute as the royal train left Portsmouth.

Last night King George and Queen Elizabeth gave a dinner party on the yacht to the lords of the admiralty, the dominion premiers and the 16 British and foreign admirals present in command of the various vessels that participated in the review.

Later all the ships were illuminated and gave a searchlight display while thousands of spectators from all over Britain lined the shores of the mainland and the Isle of Wight to view the spectacle.

For the coronation review, the King and Queen stood in the bow of the old royal yacht. Millions of watchers cheered as the Victoria and Albert steamed up and down between the lines of 160 British warships and 17 foreign vessels glittering in the brilliant sunshine.

King George wore the uniform of an admiral of the fleet. He watched fascinated as the crews lining the decks of the warships saluted him in honor of his coronation.

Maharajah to Go in All His Glory to Funeral Pyre

Paris, May 21 (AP)—In death the exiled Maharajah of Alwar, sportsman-prince of India, is going back to his native state in the splendor that attended him in life.

His whole retinue of 24 servants, including an orchestra, will accompany the body to Bombay, it was disclosed today.

There, in keeping with ancient Indian tradition, the potentate's nearest male relative—having remained 12 days in solitude without either washing or shaving—will kindle the funeral pyre on which the maharajah's remains will be cremated.

The Maharajah died Wednesday of injuries to his hip and shoulder, suffered when he stumbled on a stairway after leaving a squash court.

The favorite of his three wives remained sobbing beside the embalmed body in a hotel here. Although she was not the official Maharanee because she was not of proper caste, she had followed the Maharajah into exile and had stayed at his bedside night and day, foodless, after the accident that caused his death.

Curley Painting Up for Approval

A gilt-framed, oil painting of former Governor James M. Curley arrived at the State House today and was set up in the chamber of the executive council for approval by that body, Governor Charles F. Hurley and the Massachusetts Art Commission.

The painting, four feet wide and nearly six feet high, is the work of Leopold Seyfret under a state appropriation of $3000. If accepted, the portrait will hang with those of other governors of Massachusetts in the State House.

Perfect Week-End Weather Promised

Sunny skies and rising temperatures today brought Boston its first warm day of the week.

Humidity of .66, seven degrees below normal, also indicated mild and sunny weather in store for the week-end. The only possible mar to beautiful week-end weather today, the weatherman said, will be increasing cloudiness on Saturday afternoon.

Train Then Wrecks Stalled Truck

MRS. CORINNE TAYLOR
In Nick of Time

Never again does she hope to have such an experience, Mrs. Corinne Taylor of Highland avenue, Somerville, declared today in telling about her leap for safety from a truck which stalled in the path of a freight train.

Mrs. Taylor was riding in a truck which police said was driven by Frederick S. Hayden of Hammond street, Waltham.

While William Mooney of Willow street, Waltham, the gatetender, ran down the tracks to flag the train, the couple took no chances, but leaped from the truck.

The train was unable to stop before reaching the crossing and crashed into the truck.

$10,000 Awarded For Golf Injury

New York, May 20 (US)—A Supreme Court jury awarded George L. Combes $10,000 for injuries received on a golf course owned by New York City.

Combes lost an eye when he was struck by a golf ball on the Baker Beach course three years ago. He brought suit against the city and Edward Apstein, the man who drove the ball. Combes charged the course was not laid out properly and accused the city of negligence in operating the course. There was no negligence on the part of Apstein, the jury held.

Ex-Gov. Cox's Car Found by Police

Police today found the stolen automobile of former Governor Channing H. Cox in Short street, Charlestown.

The former Governor told police late yesterday that his chauffeur drove up to the rear of the Cox home at 173 Beacon street, Back Bay, to deliver flowers. After he had gone into the house, Cox heard the car start and looked out to see a man driving it away.

Jeffrey Farnol Sued for Divorce

London, May 21 (INS)—Mrs. Jeffrey Farnol, the former Blanche Hawley of New York, today was revealed to have brought suit against her husband, British author. The suit, which is not defended, is among 1512 cases listed for the next term of the divorce court.

CONSTIPATION CUTS DOWN YOUR ENERGY, DULLS HAPPINESS

Don't let common constipation take all the fun out of living. This condition drains your vitality and enthusiasm. It may also be the cause of dull headaches, poor appetite, sleeplessness. You feel punk.

Why endure half-sick days when you can correct constipation due to meals low in "bulk" by eating a delicious cereal?

Millions of people have used Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with satisfactory results. Laboratory tests prove it's safe and effective.

Within the body, ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water, and gently cleanses the intestines. Isn't this food better than taking weakening pills and drugs?

Eat two tablespoonfuls daily. Three times daily, in severe cases. Serve as a cereal with milk or cream, or in recipes. Sold by all grocers. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

3 of Quads Pass "Crucial Period"

Muskogee, Okla., May 21 (AP)—Hope brightened today for the survival of the three remaining Mullins quadruplets as they passed their first 48 hours of life, termed by hospital attaches, the most crucial period.

One of the two boys still is being administered oxygen. The girl, smallest of the three, seemed strongest. The fourth baby of the four born Wednesday to Mr. and Mrs. William Mullins in their two-room home 20 miles northwest of here, died shortly after birth.

CARESS OR CLINCH?—THEY DIFFER IN LOVE

Buffalo, N. Y., May 21 (AP)—A good night kiss or a natural caress can be "a beautiful token of affection, but an hour's clinch in a parked car is a different matter," in the opinion of a consultant on marriage and family problems.

Dr. Oliver M. Butterfield, lecturer and author, addressing a family relations institute meeting here, listed these primary problems which he said confront 'teen-age youths in their boy-girl relations:

1—How can one tell the difference between "true love" and "infatuation?"

2—Can marriage ideals be too high? (This, he said, was asked mostly by women 27 to 30 years old and still unmarried.)

3—When is "petting" right and when is it wrong?

"Fortunately," Dr. Butterfield said, "these problems seem to be serious to only about one-third of any given group at a particular time. In the past, there has been no competent person to whom youth could present its boy-girl difficulties.

"The clergy must keep step with the quacks, who have no morals, in the matter of informing youth about sex. They must accompany instruction by the creation of clean, healthy and beautiful attitudes toward sex."

11-Year-Old Girl Ends Her Own Life

Japanese Airmen End 25,000-Mi. Hop

Tokyo, May 21 (AP)—A crowd of 10,000 persons greeted the Japanese flyers, Masaaki Iinuma and Kenji Tsukagoshi, in a driving rain today at the end of their record-breaking flight of 25,000 miles to London and back.

After they set down their monoplane, Divine Wind, in a sea of mud, they were awarded imperial recognition. The flyers left London a week ago after breaking the record for a flight from Japan to western Europe. They brought back Coronation pictures.

HE DIDN'T BELIEVE IT

Pathetic picture of a man who doubted that Hy-Power and Aero Solvenized chase hard carbon right out of a motor. He stood back of the exhaust pipe during a demonstration and—

HE FOUND OUT!

New JENNEY Solvenized

PROTECTS METAL—DEFEATS CARBON

Metal parts are protected against burning, warping, scoring and corrosion. The solvenizing fluid adds a lubricating quality to Hy-Power and Aero gasoline which gives this needed protection.

Only JENNEY Hy-Power and JENNEY Aero give you this great improvement—a scientific development perfected by seven years' intensive testing and research, patented, and sold only at JENNEY stations.

JENNEY Gasolines Reduce Carbon—No longer need you endure carbon-choked motors—motors which respond sluggishly to the accelerator and overheat and knock when power is needed.

Solvenized Hy-Power and Aero dissolve carbon binder so that the loosened carbon can be blown out through the exhaust.

Use JENNEY Gasolines and you'll find your motor showing new pep, new power, and using less gasoline. Why not have this big saving and this motor protection?

GIRL AWARDED $14,000 FOR LOSS OF TOES

Such a blight on a young girl's future happiness should be compensated, a Suffolk county grand jury ruled, awarding her $14,000 because of the loss of four toes as a result of a street car accident four years ago.

The Boston Elevated railway was the defendant in the action brought by the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Pederson of East Seventh street, South Boston.

Robert Pederson, seven-year-old brother of Dorothy, who was with his sister at the time of the accident was allowed hospital expenses by the jury.

Dorothy, although she walks slightly lame, is beginning to develop into a good swimmer, however, and this she expects, may make her forget she can't dance. She is an honor pupil at the Oliver Hazard Perry School, South Boston.

Meet to Protest New Dock Charges

Next Wednesday at the Chamber of Commerce the committee on port facilities of the Maritime Association will hold a public hearing of protests against proposed increased dockage charges in Boston.

It was recently announced that effective June 15 a charge of 10 cents per ton of 2000 pounds or a minimum of $35 a day will be charged at the B. & M. terminal in Charlestown, the New Haven piers and Army Base.

Dorothy Pederson, 11, with her brother, Robert, 9. She was awarded $14,000 because of the loss of four toes in a street car accident. Doctors say she'll never be able to dance, but Dorothy hopes to become an expert swimmer and forget about dancing, anyway. The boy, who was also hurt in the accident was awarded hospital expenses.

DEMAND CHAIR IN TORCH CASE

New York, May 21 (INS)—Subpoenas were issued today for 51 persons to testify next Tuesday morning when Suffolk County authorities will seek a first degree murder indictment against Mrs. Helen Tiernan for the "babes-in-the-wood" slaying of her daughter, Helen, seven, and the attempted killing of her son, Jimmy, five.

District Attorney L. Barron Hill stated every effort would be made to prove Mrs. Tierman was sane when she sought to rid herself of her two children to make room in her apartment for her suitor, George Christie.

"She is sane enough," Hill said, "to know the difference between right and wrong. She should, and will, go to the electric chair."

Hill stated he believed it would be unnecessary to call little Jimmy as a witness against his mother. He said every effort would be made to spare Jimmy the ordeal of reliving the ghastly episode.

John Tiernan, 24, brother of Jimmy's late father, and his wife, Harriet, today came forward to adopt the boy.

In today's classified columns you will find a choice selection of rooms that will meet all your requirements as to price, description and location.

Haven for Children Ready in 6 Weeks

Spreading mortar for the laying of the cornerstone of the new home for children, Mrs. John T. Nightingale, chairman of the building committee of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, announced that the $80,000 building will be ready for occupancy within six weeks.

The new home, situated on Parker street, near Huntington avenue, Roxbury, will be used for the caring of children found in extreme conditions of sickness and distress. The original building of the society at 43 Mt. Vernon street, will also be maintained.

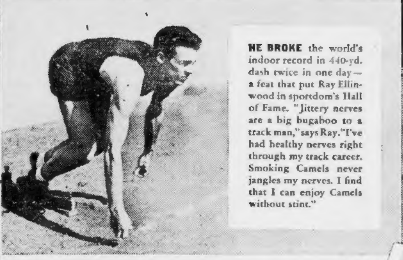
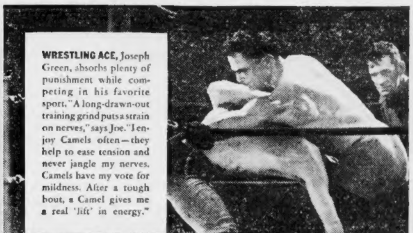
Today the sport of fencing puts much the same value on healthy nerves and unfailing alertness as did the deadly duels of long ago.

ONLY slow motion movies could show you all the brilliance of Joanna de Tuscan's darting sword play. Attack—parry—riposte—happen too quickly for the eye to follow. In Joanna de Tuscan's own words: "Success or failure may depend on the slightest turn of the foil. A person who didn't have nerve control would never stand out in fencing. My No. 1 reason for smoking Camels is—they never jangle my nerves. Camel is the cigarette that I find permits me to smoke as often as I please. It's Camels for me 'for digestion's sake' too. They're so mild they never make my throat harsh or rough."

'ROUND THE WORLD in record time. Dorothy Kilgallen, girl reporter, was assigned to break the women's globe-circling record. She did—made the trip in 24½ days! And Camels were with her every step of the way. "It was a breathless dash," she says. "I was glad to have Camels with me. I'll bet on them any time. I know they don't frazzle the nerves—ever!"



HE BROKE the world's indoor record in 440-yd. dash twice in one day—a feat that put Ray Ellinwood in sportdom's Hall of Fame. "Jittery nerves are a big bugaboo to a track man," says Ray. "I've had healthy nerves right through my track career. Smoking Camels never jangles my nerves. I find that I can enjoy Camels without stint."



WRESTLING ACE, Joseph Green, absorbs plenty of punishment while competing in his favorite sport. "A long-drawn-out training grind puts a strain on nerves," says Joe. "I enjoy Camels often—they help to ease tension and never jangle my nerves. Camels have my vote for mildness. After a tough bout, a Camel gives me a real 'lift' in energy."

News of the victory spread rapidly through the mill districts where the flare of blast furnaces cut the blackness before the dawn.

Weary workers of the night shift and sleepy-eyed mill men of the day shift quietly received the report as they passed one another through the plant gates at the 7 a. m. change.

The fresh workers glanced at the notice posted on the union headquarters just around the corner from the main entrance at the Aliquippa Works, then moved on [illegible] of making steel.

[illegible] Aliquippa was heard [illegible] union leaders said they [illegible] the demonstration would [illegible] over until tomorrow to take advantage of the Saturday half-holiday.

"This really means something to me," one husky worker declared. "I voted for the right to decide how to live my life in the mill."

"HAD TO WIN"

Frank Opeskavitch, who has tended an open hearth furnace at Aliquippa since 1922, grinned [illegible]

"Yes, sir, we had to win this election. I got kids growing up in this town of Aliquippa. They'll go into the mill some day. They gotta be free."

In three other western Pennsylvania industrial towns, more than 2000 mill men prepared to vote in elections similar to that of J. & L. workers.

The balloting was a straight "yes" and "no" [illegible]

"Do you want the union to deal for you with the company?"

[illegible]

"The victory is a smashing one and supports the prediction we made before the election," stated Murray.

"It should be a warning to other independent steel producers that the wave of favorable sentiment for the CIO and organization of the workers cannot be thwarted by opponents of true collective bargaining.

"The victory speaks for itself and undoubtedly spells universal collective bargaining throughout the entire steel industry."

Ousted Lieutenant Wins Revere Job

Former Police Lieut. Thomas J. O'Hara of Revere, dismissed in 1925 for [illegible] and [illegible] the Volstead Act, was [illegible] reinstated by Thomas H. Green, state civil service commissioner.

The former [illegible] was dismissed by Mayor John F. Walsh, but when charges against him were pressed in court he was acquitted.

Mayor Walsh, however, refused to reinstate him and O'Hara appealed for a review [illegible] review [illegible] order in 1927.

The Supreme Court later ruled the lower court did not have authority to order O'Hara's reinstatement over the Mayor's wishes.

The issue was carried before the legislative committee on cities which reported favorably a bill to authorize the city of Revere to return the police officer to his former position.

Mabel Bell Becomes Bride of William Read, Jr., Today

By BETTY ALDEN

THREE CLERGYMEN are cooperating in tieing the nuptial knot at the wedding of Mabel Bell, [illegible] of Mr. and Mrs. Stoughton Bell of Cambridge [illegible] William Read, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] this afternoon . . . Easter lilies adorn [illegible] Cambridge for the ceremony . . . [illegible] white against the black surplices of the three ministers, Rev. Gibson Bell, [illegible] of the bride, Rev. Arthur Lee Kinsolving of Trinity Church, and Rev. C. Leslie Glenn, rector of the [illegible] in which the ceremony takes place . . .

MRS. FRANCIS GLEASON

The whole ceremony is to be a very lovely pageant of soft color harmonies . . . for Mabel is an artist and has employed her talent in blending a rich, soft blue with yellow and white in designing the costumes of her bridesmaids . . .

Her own gown is an old fashioned, white satin affair, trimmed with heirloom rose point lace, and is the gown in which her mother was married . . . Her veil is of the same rich lace and her bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley . . .

Mabel has shown no partiality in [illegible] attendants . . . and as a result all seven of them [illegible] with no honor attendants . . . they are all wearing [illegible] of white marquisette with puff sleeves and tight [illegible] sashes of delphinium blue . . . Their large straw [illegible] and slippers are all of matching blue, while a [illegible] of yellow snapdragon is predominant in their [illegible] . . . there are a few spikes of delphinium and some [illegible] clusters of flowers in their arms . . .

[illegible] attendants are the Misses Charlotte Bell of Waltham, [illegible] Premer of Boston and Cohasset, Jeanette McGregor of [illegible] Frances McElwain of Cohasset, Mrs. Francis [illegible] Mary McElwain of Winchester, Mrs. Louis S. Bell of Boston and Cohasset, and Mrs. Gordon Huggins of New York, [illegible] Read, sister of the bridegroom . . .

Reception at Cambridge Home

FOLLOWING THE WEDDING, the bridal couple are receiving [illegible] intimate friends at a small reception [illegible] home . . . Even Mrs. Bell's wisteria [illegible] straw hat, blend with the color [illegible] planned for the wedding . . . Mrs. [illegible] black chiffon with French blue lace, and [illegible] silver fox scarves with orchids . . .

[illegible] standing at the altar is not serving [illegible] but performing the duties of best [illegible] . . . He is the Rev. Frederick W. Kates of St. [illegible] . . . [illegible] has provided ten ushers to seat the friends [illegible] to witness the ceremony . . . They are [illegible] of the bridegroom, William [illegible] of Baltimore, Rev. James DeWolf Hubbard of [illegible] Louis Bell, Endicott Saltonstall, Rev. [illegible] Dodson, F. Ware Newbury, all [illegible] K. Aiken of Andover . . .

The entire wedding party toasted the bridal couple at a [illegible] given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. Read at their [illegible] all concerned enjoyed a buffet luncheon at The Country Club at which Frances McElwain and her sister, Mrs. Gleason, were hostesses . . .

Mabel is a graduate of Beaver Country Day and the Childe Walker School of Art, and lately has been helping Mrs. Robert [illegible] decorate lamp shades, and all sorts of hand made gadgets to be sold as wedding gifts and bridge prizes . . .

Bill graduated from Browne and Nichols and the University of Virginia . . . Following a three-week honeymoon in Bermuda [illegible] will live in Duxbury for the summer and [illegible] winter . . .

Marjorie English Weds in New York

MARJORIE ENGLISH'S marriage yesterday in New York [illegible] a surprise to her friends around here . . . [illegible] has been living in Gotham and since the wedding was very small, few Bostonians were invited to [illegible] . . .

Marjorie, the daughter of Mrs. Everett W. English of [illegible] and the late Mr. English, became the bride of Francis [illegible] Goldsborough, in the Church of the Ascension . . . [illegible] son of Mrs. Richard F. Goldsborough [illegible] Mr. Goldsborough, of East 55th street . . . and [illegible] sister, Mrs. William F. R. Ballard gave the wedding reception [illegible] on East 75th street . . .

[illegible] was given in marriage by her brother, Everett, [illegible] as [illegible] only attendant, Sue Dalton of Milton, who [illegible] the same year as the bride . . . Theodore [illegible] was best man for Mr. Goldsborough . . .

The bride was presented in September, 1933, at a luncheon given by Mrs. Morton Prince, cousin of Mrs. English . . . The preceding summer, following her graduation from Milton Academy, Marjorie studied painting at a summer school on Martha's Vineyard conducted by the well known Norwegian painter, Jonas Lie . . . She is a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club . . .

Her new husband shares her enthusiasm for art and is in business as an industrial designer with offices on Park avenue . . . He was born and educated in New Orleans . . . He is a grandson of the late Edgar Howard Farrar, one time president of the American Bar Association . . . He is also descended from the Jefferson family of Virginia and from Lucinda Davis, older sister of Jefferson Davis, president of the Confederacy . . .

ALL DRESSED Up for Winthrop House Dance

JEANNE HERMAN and Henry H. Tift of Harvard look pretty dressy for a Spring House Cleaning Party, but when they arrived at the dance at Winthrop House last evening they discovered that the "housecleaning" had been done in the afternoon by the energetic committee members, and all that was left for the guests to do was have a grand and glorious time. Decorations at the dance were dustpans, brooms, vacuum cleaners, and ash barrels full of torn up and discarded themes and term papers.

Gypsy Festival at Weston To Aid Scholarship Fund

Mrs. Walter Byron, her post debutante daughter, Nancy Byron and Mrs. [illegible] will [illegible] models in the fashion show which is a [illegible] of the diversified entertainment [illegible] for the Gypsy Encampment and Festival to be held [illegible] the Weston Town [illegible] tomorrow.

It is quite an innovation for a gypsy encampment to have a fashion show, with the latest New York and Paris styles, but this encampment is not being conducted strictly according to Hoyle or the rules of the Romany brotherhood.

AIDS SCHOLARSHIP

The chief purpose is to offer every available [illegible] to those who attend and to [illegible] for the [illegible] of the Women's [illegible] of Weston. Mrs. John W. [illegible], Mrs. John B. Mickles, Miss Sweet and Miss Mabel Richardson will also [illegible] in the fashion show.

Another novelty [illegible] who have seen un-cared-for children scampering all around a gypsy encampment by the side of a road, will be the children's pound. In this enclosure, which by the way will be erected on the site of the [illegible] Weston Town [illegible] can be checked [illegible] others [illegible] the [illegible] of the basket in front of [illegible].

Gypsies will sing and bring music from gypsyesque instruments during tea, which will be served by the following winsome waitresses: Betty Pooler, Janet Summer, [illegible] Mellor, Mabel Richardson, [illegible] Richardson, Jessie Palmer, [illegible] Spinage. On the [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] Mrs. L. W. [illegible] Mrs. [illegible]

CHILDREN'S FEATURES

A [illegible] of the encampment will not be [illegible] sides by the pound but by a number of children's features. There will be a small circus, movies, marionettes, a merry-go-round and an organ grinder with a monkey to collect pennies, so there will be plenty of entertainment for the youthful gypsies, in addition to [illegible] pop corn [illegible]

On the children's committee are Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. George [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Potter [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. David Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Elwell, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Whittemore and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lombard.

CHAPTER II

"Maybe you've got some shopping to do, or something," Mrs. W[illegible] suggested after they'd lunched on tea and lettuce sandwiches at the kitchen sink.

"No. But maybe there's something I could get for you?"

"No thanks, I do all my own shopping. I could have things sent [illegible] but I prefer to see what I'm getting.

"We have only the best . . . But I thought you might like [illegible] walk down to the avenue, and see the stores, and the lake, [illegible] the movies—we have a beautiful theater."

"I believe I will—if you're sure there's nothing I can do here for you."

[illegible]

"Maybe I shouldn't have cooked [illegible]

[illegible] she think we have dinner? Eight? Or ten?"

"W[illegible] her."

"Yes, go ahead—start."

W[illegible]—I sort of hate to—"

[illegible]

"Lost." [illegible] lost in OAKLAND'

[illegible]

"I'm going to give a bridge [illegible] for you," Bee said, "to have you meet the girls."

"Bee has some lovely friends," Mrs. Wilson contributed.

"I'm going to have it in a hotel, of course, but I haven't exactly [illegible] yet. Betty Cleave had hers at the St. Francis, but I—"

"In a HOTEL!" Up went Mr. Wilson's chin. "Isn't your own home good enough for your friends? I don't like this hotel entertaining. New fangled snobbishness—that's what it is. Spend [illegible] money on waiters and [illegible]—"

"I'm giving this party! And I'm paying for it."

"All right, if you don't appreciate your own home you can—"

"I can leave it—any time I want—and you'd like that, wouldn't you. I'd like to know what there'd be left after I took out my things and—"

"BEE! Please. You mustn't talk so to your father. I—"

[illegible]

"But he makes me so TIRED!"

[illegible] since I make you so tired—since my opinions are so worthless—"

"CLAUDE! You didn't touch your turnover! And you haven't had your second cup of tea!"

"Wait a minute, Pop!" Edward [illegible] him back toward the [illegible]. "Stop listening to those women and listen to me. Listen! I got a job!"

"You got a job, son?"

His mother's eyes filled with tears. "Why, that's wonderful! That's just wonderful. But why didn't you tell—"

"Saving it for Marie. What do you say, baby?"

"Oh, Edward! I'm so GLAD!"

Wilson sat down again. "Not so easy to get a job now either. Many a man walking the streets that—"

"Pass your cup, Claude. But I do think, Eddie, that you might at least have mentioned to your mother — telephone, Bee! It's probably for you."

ANOTHER GIRL'

Mrs. Wilson, beaming still, [illegible] to Marie. "She's always been popular. Both of them. I don't know how it was with you, but Beatrice—"

[illegible] came back. "It's for you, Ed."

"Helene," Bee said.

[illegible] down his fork. He [illegible]. They all watched [illegible]. He [illegible] cleared his throat, [illegible] Marie. His mother [illegible] said in a low voice, "Does she know?"

"Does she know what?"

Mrs. Wilson moistened her lips. "Know that you're—married?"

"Eddie didn't say what kind of a job—"

"Heavens sake! Give him time—he WILL."

[illegible]

He came back, smiling. They all waited expectantly. "Well, since you insist, Mom, I'll have that extra turnover."

"You couldn't have eaten much in Los Angeles," she said. "I never saw you with such an appetite! Eddie—you didn't say WHERE you were going to work."

[illegible] "Oh, it isn't so much, mom—but it's a job." He [illegible] "Just a job in a gas station."

"I worked there once before when I was in college. Not a bad guy to work for. And it's a tide-over, until something better breaks."

"I think it's wonderful!"

"Silly! It's not so hot!"

"I know—but to get it so soon! And when you have one job, it's always easy to get another. I've heard lots of people say that!"

"That's right, too. Besides, the hours are rather broken—a lot of night work and I'll be able to get around and make contacts during the day."

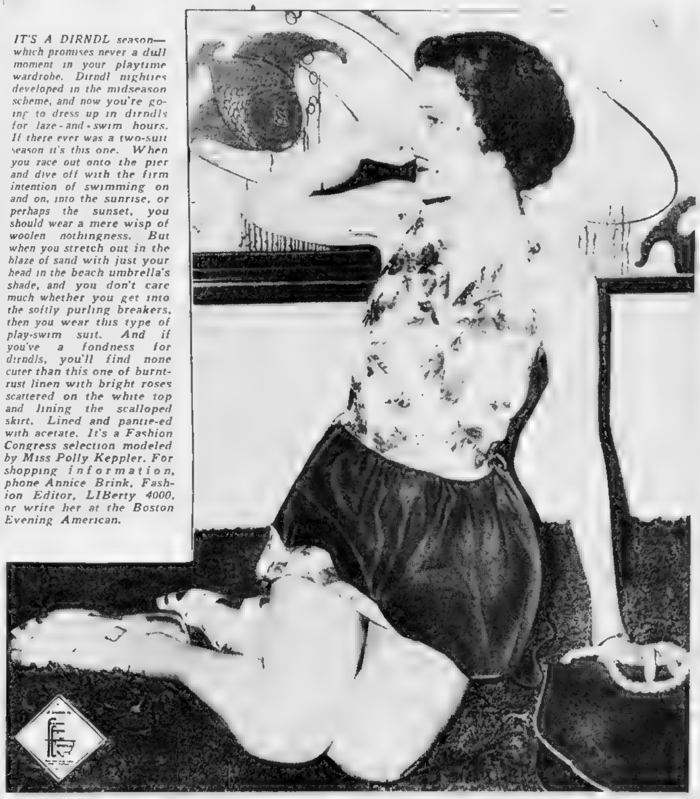
Diary of a Good Girl

BY MELISSE

"If I don't win, may I go swimming?"

Now It's the Dirndl Bathing Suit

IT'S A DIRNDL season—which promises never a dull moment in your playtime wardrobe. Dirndl nighties developed in the midseason scheme, and now you're going to dress up in dirndls for laze-and-swim hours. If there ever was a two-suit season it's this one. When you race out onto the pier and dive off with the firm intention of swimming on and on, into the sunrise, or perhaps the sunset, you should wear a mere wisp of woolen nothingness. But when you stretch out in the blaze of sand with just your head in the beach umbrella's shade, and you don't care much whether you get into the softly purling breakers, then you wear this type of play-swim suit. And if you've a fondness for dirndls, you'll find none cuter than this one of burnt-rust linen with bright roses scattered on the white top and lining the scalloped skirt. Lined and pantie-ed with acetate. It's a Fashion Congress selection modeled by Miss Polly Keppler. For shopping information, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American.



Martha Offers Seasonable Pie Recipes

FROM MARTHA LEE'S FRIDAY MORNING BROADCAST OVER STATION WMEX.

Pies, like fingers, were made before forks and once served very much the same purpose.

When knives and spoons were the only implements of table cutlery, it was something of a trick to keep the fingers clean at the table.

Meat was usually minced and stewed, so that it could be eaten with a spoon. And it was often served in a pie, because the crust could be daintily held in the fingers to convey the meat to the mouth. Dessert pies, too, were found useful for the same reason.

Just remember this when you are planning picnic menus this summer. Individual tarts for dessert can be eaten out of hand and form a most satisfactory finish for the picnic feast. Here are failure proof recipes for toothsome tart fillings that can be made in five minutes kitchen duty.

MAGIC GOLDEN TARTS

3 oranges
3 eggs
3 tablespoons granulated sugar
12 baked tart shells or
1 baked pie shell (9 inch)

Blend sweetened condensed milk with diced pulp and juice of oranges. Add well-beaten egg yolk. Pour into baked tart shells. Cover top with meringue made by beating egg whites until stiff and adding sugar. Bake in moderately slow oven (325 F.) 15 minutes, or until meringue is brown. Chill.

MAGIC LEMON DATE MERINGUE PIE

1/2 cup lemon juice
Grated rind of 1 lemon or
1/4 teaspoon lemon extract
2 eggs separated
3/4 cup finely chopped dates
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
Baked pie shell (8-inch) or baked tart shells.

Blend together sweetened condensed milk, lemon juice, grated lemon rind or lemon extract and egg yolks. Pour into baked pie shell or baked tart shells. Cover with finely chopped dates. Cover with meringue, made by beating egg whites until stiff and adding sugar. Bake in moderate oven (350) for 10 minutes or until brown. Chill before serving.

Then we offer two other pie recipes that are seasonable and will make a delightful dinner dessert at home.

PINEAPPLE CHEESE PIE

1 cup graham cracker crumbs (approximately 13 crackers)
1/4 cup butter (softened)
3 tablespoons sugar
1 cup cottage cheese
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
3/4 cup drained, crushed pineapple
1/2 cup evaporated milk
1/4 cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla

Save three tablespoons of the graham cracker crumbs, blending remainder with softened butter and sugar. Press mixture firmly against bottom and sides of well buttered nine-inch pie plate. Thoroughly mix cottage cheese and remaining ingredients. Pour into crumb lined pie, sprinkling top with remaining graham cracker crumbs. Bake in hot oven (425 F.) 15 minutes. ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE -:- By Beatrice Fairfax

Boy Who Agreed to Wed Two Girls Wonders What to Do

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

[illegible]

to be released from your engagement.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

It would take a book to tell you about the environment I [illegible]. There was a [illegible] father at home who broke up furniture and made life impossible for all of us. I worked all day in a department store, went to night school and became a good enough stenographer to become secretary to one of the partners in a [illegible].

[illegible] the boss didn't fall in love with me, but he knew what I had gone through to make something of myself and he was always kind.

I fell in love with a young man in the same firm, and he, without reason, became jealous of the boss.

He persuaded me to resign and look for work in another city as he was going there to take a new job.

This I did, and for a long time was unemployed.

Then I got a very poor job and my fiance became indifferent. He comes to see me now once in two weeks and I hear he is paying attention to another girl.

I have become disgusted with him and would like very much to get my old job back, but naturally my pride stands in my way.

I have broken my engagement with this fickle young man, and feel that I am lucky to have escaped him as a husband.

DOREEN.

MY DEAR GIRL:

Pride of the sort you describe is poor ammunition in the fight all of us have to wage.

Why not write a letter to the old firm and say you'd like to come back to them even if you have to take a job that paid less well than your former position?

And I'm so glad that you harbor no illusions about the young man who apparently is no more stable than a weather vane.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Everything seemed to be going beautifully. We were head over heels in love and our families smiled at the match.

Then suddenly his mother began to grow cold.

She said it was because we were of different religions.

He told me privately that it was because he helped out a good deal at home, and she didn't want to lose her hold on his pay envelope.

I don't know what it was all about, neither does he. But we have tears, hysterics, commotions all the time. I'm 19 and he's 23.

I'm perfectly willing to go over to his church, or he is willing to come to mine.

So it looks to me as if it might be the pay envelope.

L. M. K.

DEAR GIRL:

It seems to me that religion can be left out of the question entirely, since each of you is so tolerant about the other's belief. It must be the pay envelope.

You haven't told me enough about the family resources to enable me to give you a satisfactory answer.

If they're all dependent on this boy and his salary, naturally they're going to fight to keep it. But if there are other employed members of the clan, wouldn't it be possible for him to say, "I will contribute so much," or if he isn't able to do that, he might take a firm stand and let other members of the family do their part.

It's pretty tough on young love, I admit, when they have to break engagements to help support their families. This will also answer several other girls who have written me concerning the same problem.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

FRANK: The correct formal attire for the bridegroom at an evening wedding is: Coat—swallow-tail of dull faced worsted, satin facing. Waistcoat—white, single or double-breasted, of plain pique. Trousers—of same material as the coat, wide black braid on outer seams. Shirt—plain white, stiff bosom, linen. Collar—wing or poke. Tie—wide or butterfly white bow. (Tie it yourself.) Shoes—pumps or oxfords of patent leather. Hose—black silk, plain, no clocks. Jewelry—mother-of-pearl set, cuff links and shirt [illegible]. Topcoat—plain or very dark blue. Hat—tall, silk one. Muffler—white silk. (Don't buy a knitted one.) Handkerchief—white silk. Gloves—white kid. Boutonniere—flower matching bride's bouquet. Walking stick—plain wood with straight handle.

This is the proper formal attire for men. It answers more than 100 letters I have received from all parts of New England during the past month.

Non-Allergic Powder

POSED BY KATHERINE HEPBURN

By ARLINE GOULD

THIS being an age of specialization—especially in cosmetics—is it any wonder that pretty magnificent things are expected in the name of beauty?

We've always felt that dry skins, being a [illegible] trying to manage as hothouses full of orchids, deserve anything we can do to humour them.

Combatting dryness . . . especially in summer . . . isn't nearly as simple as you might think. Dry skins get even dryer under a burning sun than they do when whipped by icy arctic blasts in winter.

Putting all your faith in creams in order to keep your face moist and luscious, is a very bad thing indeed, it seems. For this authority we have the word of one of the foremost dry skin specialists in the country. And it would seem as though she should know.

In fact, so certain is she that dry skin care extends beyond [illegible] four lovely walls of your boudoir [illegible] watering creams and [illegible] she has [illegible] a different creation.

It is a super-sensitive dry skin "special formula" face powder and it is a supreme [illegible] in every sense of the word. Extensive tests have proved it to be extraordinarily adherent, long lasting and soothing.

But that isn't all. It is free of any substance known to be allergic. Moreover, its opacity and covering power combine to make it an effective aid in screening out the actinic rays of sunlight . . . so taxing to frail, fragile beauty.

It's only, of course, for delicate, sensitive types of skins which suffer from a deficiency [illegible]. If your skin happens to be [illegible] this powder [illegible] means for [illegible].

To [illegible] the name of this new and super-sensitive dry skin powder [illegible] write to [illegible] the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

"Your Figure, Madame!"

"Spanking" Exercise Jars Off Unwanted Fat

By IDA JEAN KAIN

[illegible] 1937, by King Features [illegible]

YOU can literally iron out your [illegible] bulges with massage. This is the favorite "exercise" of the extreme-weights—those excessively over or under the normal. Whatever your weight status, you will find massage a valuable addition to general exercise.

Exercise stimulates the circulation generally, but massage singles out the pads or rolls of fat for individual attention. As the circulation is stimulated [illegible] the figure is molded into lovelier contours.

[illegible] as many as four [illegible]

[illegible] into more graceful lines while her nerves are soothed. When given proper [illegible] massage is recognized as both a weight and health normalizing measure. It's results are temporary, however, unless the underlying muscles are strengthened with exercise.

Like most authorities on massage, Miss Gomez firmly believes in specific exercise, particularly of the type which will improve posture. She says, "No results to the figure can be lasting unless the posture is good." You will be able to subtract a few unnecessary inches from your figure simply by stretching yourself up to your full height with hips unobtrusively in place and diaphragm up where it belongs.

If it's the pounding action of massage you want on the hips, then try this exercise suggested by Miss Gomez.

Sit on the floor, lean slightly backward, hands back to support the weight, and legs stretched straight down on the floor. Now break down the fat with a stamping action—bounce [illegible] spank [illegible] will jar the fat off. To smooth [illegible] of the hips [illegible]

Life Insurance, of Course!!
But What Then?

Life insurance provides a competence in old age, or creates an estate to assure a definite, fixed income. Again, it provides a fund for payment of inheritance taxes. Of major importance, of course, it provides for the financial future of your loved ones. Everyone should carry insurance.

The combination of life insurance and the trust service of well-established banking institutions has advantages now meeting with popular approval. Knowledge of the benefits is becoming widespread.

One type of protection is the trust designed to benefit the family. It first guards capital, which must support those lacking in financial experience, from slipping through their hands. It protects widows and young people from the unprincipled person or the misinformed friend.

The second type—the BUSINESS INSURANCE TRUST—creates a fund which replaces, in part, at least, the value of human assets when a valuable associate passes away. Forward looking business men are availing themselves of this particular trust in ever-increasing numbers.

Life insurance trusts aim to provide a dependable income to those they protect. They throw safeguards around capital; keep it invested under skilled management, dispose of the income and of the capital itself, in the way directed by the person who created the Trust. In doing these things, it brings assistance and comfort to those for whom the trusts are drawn.

Visit any one of the institutions listed below. You will meet men who are keenly alive to present-day personal and business problems. They will help you in preparing a plan to fit your requirements, which you can discuss with your insurance counselor and your attorney. The completion of such a plan means a solution of your problem as to the financial future of your family or of your business associates.

Congress OK's 'Aviator Day'

May 28, 1937, Set Aside For National Observance

By STANLEY CARROLL

Washington, May 21 (US)—On the tenth anniversary of Colonel Charles A. Lindberg's epochal solo flight to Paris, the Senate joined the House in approval of a resolution setting aside May 28 as National Aviation Day.

As leaders in aviation met in [illegible] to honor the man who blazed a trail through the clouds over the Atlantic the joint resolution was ready for President Roosevelt's signature.

RECORD ENDORSEMENT

The resolution approved by the House Monday and released in almost record time by the Senate, reads:

"Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, that the President of the United States is authorized to designate May 28, 1937, as National Aviation Day and to issue a proclamation calling upon officers of the government to display the flag of the United States on all government buildings on that day and inviting the people of the United States to observe the day with appropriate exercises to further and stimulate interest of aviation in the United States."

"In view of the fact that May 28 is almost at hand, it is desired to have the resolution approved at once, that plans may be completed throughout the nation for observation of National Aviation Day."

HONOR DICK MERRILL

On Robinson's motion the resolution was unanimously endorsed and at once prepared for the President's assured signature.

Immediately following the Senate action officials of the Army and Navy Union drafted plans to honor Dick Merrill, intrepid transatlantic flier, and Jack Lambie, copilot with whom he made his recent "coronation hop."

Merrill, it was learned, will be presented by the Union with a medal hailing him as "the outstanding pilot of 1937."

Lambie also will receive a medal for his part in the spectacular round trip flight from New York to London and return.

[illegible], May 21 (US)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and his family have clung tenaciously to their solemn resolve that never again would they willingly enter the glare of the public spotlight.

It made no difference even on the day that marked the 10th anniversary of Colonel Lindbergh's epochal solo flight from New York to Paris. Only once during the sunlit day did anyone pierce their self-erected wall of aloofness and he saw—

Colonel Lindbergh playing games with his little son in the secluded garden of his pretty English cottage.

The famous aviator otherwise remained incommunicado, ordering his telephone disconnected and carrying out with Mrs. Anne Lindbergh and their child Jon their quiet daily regimen including an evening auto ride through the countryside. None of the villagers saw them.

New York, May 21 (US)—Hundreds of aviation enthusiasts and admirers of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh who gathered for an anniversary dinner here heard a message read to them in which the noted flier showed a lack of enthusiasm for such celebrations.

Thomas W. Lamont read to the assemblage excerpts from a personal letter received from the ocean conqueror less than a week ago, among which were:

"I believe that the past should not be turned into an obligation for the future, and ceremonies for celebrating past events almost invariably become an obligation for those taking part in them.

"It seems to me that the past should be used to simplify rather than complicate our lives. At this time, especially, there are too many serious problems which require concentrated attention to justify our spending very much time celebrating the accomplishments of another period.

"Although I do not feel that you should take the time to do it, I deeply appreciate the fact that you are willing to speak on the anniversary of my flight. I am in the strange, although not unique, position of being thoroughly opposed to the holding of a celebration which I feel is an exceptionally great honor."

Dr. Angell Given Yale's Mory Cup

New Haven, Conn., May 21 (AP)—Dr. James Rowland Angell, retiring president of Yale University, was awarded the Mory cup "for conspicuous service to Yale" by the board of governors of Mory's Association tonight. Hon. John L. Gilson, president of the association, made the presentation.

Estranged Wife Accuses Husband

Mrs. Gladys Lynch of Highland avenue, Wollaston, haled her estranged husband into Quincy Court today after an unexpected visit from him in the early hours.

She charged that her estranged husband, [illegible] F. Lynch of Church street, Milton, entered her bedroom while she was asleep. Lynch was arraigned on a charge of simple assault and the case was continued until May 24 after a bench conference.

14 Hurt at Race

Havana, May 21 (US)—Fourteen spectators were injured at Independence Day races here today when a car driven by Jose Romero went out of control at Marco Park and jumped the curb into the crowd. Four of the injured were reported dying.

THIS IS LIFE

BY

Robert E. Rogers

Although it is not easy to rouse any interest in the minutiae of David's marriage to Mrs. Warfield, whether civil or religious, what guests are or are not invited, who, when, where, and how — the why seems to be taken care of— and how many gowns the future Her Grace or Her Royal Highness has laid in against hard times, yet one recent dispatch does seem to touch on things more important.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

It may be only an unofficial spokeman (the name is Rogers, I believe), making up things out of his own head; it may be a fantasy or a canard. Still it is interesting, that report that the Duke of Windsor is resolved not to let the government kick his brother around any more than is necessary, or not if he can help it.

He seems to be in a mood not to take anything more lying down. To a certain extent he is a free agent. He is to draw no money from the government. Strictly speaking he is under no longer the jurisdiction of the Cabinet or the Commons.

Depends on Affection Of Common People

He has just had a book by one Geoffrey Dennis suppressed because it contained libelous matter—and in England the greater the truth the greater the libel. He is still undoubtedly very popular with the rank and file. During Coronation week there were a few minor demonstrations of loyalty and resentment among the "masses." He has always been pretty high-spirited, inclined to go his own gait, and his famous speech to the unemployed miners may have been the reason why Stanley Baldwin was determined not to put up with him any longer. David furnished the excuse and pretext. He played into their, his enemies' hands, but he is reported to be counting on the continued loyalty and affection of the common people of England.

Mr. Stanley Baldwin is retiring and probably glad of it. Neville Chamberlain, prime minister to be, is something of an unknown quantity. While his friends in London are reported to be alarmed at his reported determination and to fear that having cooked his own goose he may cook his relatives' goose as well.

They Soon Teach Them Their Places

The long retirement of the King from actual power dates from William and Mary and carries on through a long line of Hanoverians. The people as a whole not only acquiesced in it but preferred it. They preferred to be ruled by an English aristocracy than by a foreign king. Even the well-beloved Victoria was taught her place early in her reign in no uncertain terms.

Edward VII and George V never attempted to kick over the traces. George VI seems unlikely to be anything but a well-behaved figure-head. But if David gets it into his head that his brother is being "put upon" he might take it into his head to do something about it.

There is a situation that never existed before. An English born royalty, comrade in arms of many still young and active men, far more popular than his brother is likely to be, blest with something of a social conscience, still remembered regretfully and affectionately by many of the desperately poor who once trusted he might be able to do something for them—the situation is not entirely free from dynamite.

Might Scare Them Out of Their Boots

Supposing David chose to rouse the people against the government with the rallying call of social justice. He might have the left wing of the British Labor Party with him and that is not altogether negligible. The tradition of Jack Cade and Wat Tyler is very old and perfectly well known. A royal Jack Cade, openly attempting to recover for the royal family some of the old lost prerogatives under the excuse of social and economic reform, might at least scare the Commons and the Lords out of their boots. He might get somewhere. Or, as one of my editorial colleagues is accustomed to remark, then again he might not.

It is probably not even a remote possibility. David is hardly singled minded enough for that. Yet he is undoubtedly angry. And an angry man who considers himself free of obligations might kick up a pretty fuss. The government and the Royal Family may not have got shut of David yet.

Film Stars' Lives Revealed for You

Ann Marsters' Articles Begin in Sunday Paper

Beginning Sunday, the Boston Sunday Advertiser and the Boston Evening American will present one of the most unique features yet to be offered to Boston and New England newspaper readers.

Ann Marsters, ace feature writer, will begin Sunday her new series of articles and interviews dealing with the behind the scenes life of famous film stars.

Miss Marsters is in Hollywood where she recently played roles in a number of screen productions. She is, therefore, in an ideal strategic position to obtain at first hand real authentic interviews with the stars.

Among the celebrities Miss Marsters will bring closer to you is Freddie Bartholomew, boy star of Kipling's "Captains Courageous," which is now drawing capacity crowds at a Boston theater.

She will also give you the real inside story of the lives of such stars as Sonja Henie, Tyrone Power, Jeanette MacDonald and former Bostonians including Sophie Tucker, Ray Bolger and Jack Haley.

By reading Miss Marsters' series of articles in the Advertiser and American you can keep abreast of what the stars are really doing. You will be actually in and of Hollywood, close to the sets where the super-productions are created and in the homes of the stars themselves. Through Miss Marsters' unique contacts you will have Hollywood brought to your own home.

Begin Sunday by buying the Advertiser and starting Miss Marsters' series. Then keep it up by getting the Evening American every day. Don't miss this great feature.

3-Month Jobs

Members of the state board of tax appeals were assured of their jobs for at least another three months today after the House had eliminated the emergency preamble to a bill abolishing the board. This makes the bill effective 90 days after the governor signs it instead of immediately.

M. D. C. Schedules Concert, Hikes

Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman of the Metropolitan District Commission announced today that the MDC-WPA would sponsor a band concert on Sunday afternoon at Waverley Oaks in Belmont.

Preceding the concert on Sunday will be a nature walk through the Beaverbrook reservation, home of the famous Waverley Oaks, to start at 1:30. At MDC police headquarters in Medford on Fellsway west at 11 a. m. on Sunday the 10-mile hikers will assemble for their regular Sunday distance hike through the Middlesex Fells.

Two Saturday afternoon affairs will be held in the Blue Hills area.

Award Tech Senior Stratton Prize

Massachusetts Institute of Technology announced today first award in its annual Stratton prize contest for the best technical treatise submitted by undergraduates had been won by a senior, Duane C. Wood of Denver, Col. His paper was on "Television."

Second prize went to a sophomore, Miss Anna A. Person of El Paso, Tex. Her topic was "Glass in architecture." Third prize went to a senior, James D. McLean of Framingham, Mass., for a paper on "Circuits in Politics," a discussion of the use of radio and public address systems in political campaigns.

BROOKS To Hit Prison REFORM

FEARS LYMAN 'THEORIES'

Councillor Frank A. Brooks of Concord, former chairman or the state parole board, will ask Governor Hurley to reject a large part of a prison reform plan drawn up by Commissioner of Correction Arthur T. Lyman, it was indicated

The objections of Brooks, who is considered the Chief Executive's adviser on prison conditions, to points in the elaborate report submitted by Commissioner Lyman are expected to have considerable influence on the governor's treatment of the proposed changes in the penal system.

Councillor Brooks has made his chief protest against a recommendation by Lyman that superior court judges be given authority to abandon the present system of sentencing criminals to specific prisons, and instead turn them over to the department of correction to be assigned to whatever prison the department sees fit.

FEARS THEORISTS

He is opposed to a system permitting social workers or individuals not directly responsible to the state government to handle prisoners' dispositions.

He is afraid experienced penologists will be replaced by theorists in directing the state's prison system and will include this belief in his report to the Governor next week.

For nearly two weeks Brooks and other council members have been making a survey of Lymann's report. Brooks expressed approval of some of the recommendations but on the principal points held divergent views.

LYMAN RECOMMENDATIONS

Commissioner Lyman also recommended that Charlestown state prison be restricted to a combination receiving station and a permanent prison for desperate criminals for whom little or no hope of rehabilition is held.

His new system would also include the transfer of 300 prisoners from Concord reformatory to the Norfolk prison colony and the shift of more amenable convicts from Charlestown to Concord.

Brooks is said to be considered by the governor for reappointment to his old post of parole board head, if the pending bill to abolish the present board and establish a new one is enacted.

PROBERS WEIGH MUTUAL EXPOSE

A statement by Miss Katherine O'Leary, chief examiner of the state department of insurance, that the defunct Commonwealth Mutual Liability Insurance Company should never have been granted a license was being considered today by a special legislative committee probing the company's affairs.

The insurance hearing was adjourned at the close of Miss O'Leary's testimony yesterday until Monday, when the chief examiner will take the stand again following the calling of several minor witnesses.

It was asserted by Miss O'Leary that founders of the Commonwealth company borrowed money to purchase the $25,000 in United States bonds they afterwards used in three different ways as collateral, thus taking on an illegal liability.

Ceramic Brick For Courthouse

Construction of Boston's new $5,000,000 courthouse will begin next week and its facing will be of ceramic brick, not of cheaper gray pressed brick as designated by the PWA, it was announced today by the Suffolk County Courthouse Commission.

Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes gave permission for use of the ceramic brick at a Washington conference yesterday. It is expected the building will be finished on June 15, 1938.

ROBERT BLAIR MRS. CAROLINE BLAIR

Mother, Boy She Fights to Keep

Judge Sets Minimum Bail For Ex-Malden Woman

Hiding her six-year-old son, Robert, at an unknown address in New York city, Mrs. Caroline Blair of Astoria, L. I. was today defying Massachusetts authorities to tear her boy from her custody.

Encouraged by sympathetic Magistrate Frank Giorgio of Queens County (N. Y.) Mrs. Blair was free on $100 bail and was prepared to fight extradition to Malden for alleged kidnaping of the boy.

On complaint of the child's father Robert Blair of Linden avenue, Malden, Lieutenant John J. McCartney of the Malden police today sought an indictment against Mrs. Blair before the Middlesex grand jury.

PRAISED BY JUDGE

The mother was before the Queens county justice yesterday after her arrest on a warrant issued from Malden. Justice Giorgio expressing admiration for Mrs. Blair's strong mother love said he had no recourse but to hold her until the grand jury action but ordered the minimum bail.

Placing the bail at $100 and expressing sympathy for the mother, Justice Giorgio said:

ORDER INVALID

Mrs. Blair admitted coming to Malden last Sunday and taking the boy from the father who, she claimed, is unable to provide proper care in a furnished room. She took the child on the grounds that the father held custody on a court order issued in Astoria, N. Y., an order held invalid in this state.

Malden authorities proceeded against Mrs. Blair today because, they said, that Blair in addition to the custody papers from Astoria he had also been awarded custody in this state.

Bogus Priest Hunted as Thief

Medford police today launched a search for a man who, dressed as a priest, has been victimizing Medford merchants who have mistakenly been contributing to church funds. The police, armed with descriptions of the man, expect to make an arrest in Boston today.

Blind Girl Tells Of Massacres

Soon to leave for Greece to teach the blind in governmental schools in that country, Miss Kyriake Nicolaidou featured the ceremonies commemorating the 100th anniversary of Michael Anagnos, second director of the Perkins Institution for the Blind in Watertown.

Miss Nicolaidou, in a speech in Dwight Hall, told of surviving massacres by the Turks near the city of Samson on the Black Sea. It was during that reign of terror that Miss Nicolaidou contracting trachoma lost her sight. The program was also featured by a pageant presented by blind kindergarten pupils.

Missing Roxbury Youth Hunted

Police today were searching for James E. Gilbault, 19-year-old Dudley street, Roxbury, youth who disappeared from his home Monday, during the absence of his family.

Fearing her son had collapsed on the street and is in some hospital unidentified, Mrs. Eugene Gilbault, the youth's mother, told police he had been suffering from a serious ailment for the past two months.

A thorough check of all local hospitals, mortuaries and police records was being made while state police were keeping a lookout for him.

Boys Blamed for 10 False Alarms

Youths with a penchant for turning in false fire alarms sent the Boston Fire Department on 10 needless calls through the streets of Roxbury, Roslindale and Hyde Park early today at an estimated cost of $3500 to the city.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

BY

Ann Marsters

Hollywood, Cal., May 21—The stars all have their own special methods for getting themselves in the proper moods to play emotional scenes.

ANN MARSTERS

Greta Garbo hides in her dressing room and makes not a sound. (She is thinking, evidently.) Joan Crawford puts her face in her hands and also thinks.

Robert Taylor paces the floor and talks to himself. Carole Lombard walks up and down and wrings her hands. Eleanor Powell gets away in a corner and bites her fingers (NOT her nails). Jeanette MacDonald hums to herself, and Madge Evans must have a cup of hot tea just before a big scene.

But Clark Gable is one actor who does not do the slightest thing about it. When he has to do a tragic love scene, for instance, he just lays aside his detective novel, walks before the camera, and goes into action without any fuss.

They Order Beautiful Legs From Hollywood Market

There is a very odd industry in Hollywood called "The Leg Market," and it works like this.

When a director thinks he'll be needing a closeup of a certain type of legs for the next day's shooting, he calls the market headquarters and gives his order. The next day, the legs are delivered—under their own power.

"First of all," he said, "when we want to show a closeup of a star's legs, we can't always photograph her own. They may be either too thin or too plump, so hers must be 'doubled' with pretty ones. Then, too, we need cigarette girls with pretty legs, and hat check girls and pages and trumpeters or something of the sort in almost every picture.

"They must be far more attractive than legs ordinarily are. So that's what makes them scarce."

Really They're 'Accessories' Before the —er Crime!

John Barrymore was being interviewed by the star reporter of a movie magazine, and the two were getting along fine when the reporter, saying he had to leave, asked to be excused.

"We're going to hold a conference at the office," he explained.

"What about?" asked Barrymore.

"Good Heavens!" said Barrymore. "Do you mean to tell me it's premeditated?"

We think Sam Goldwyn should hurry up and start production on "Gone With the Wind" before the public completely forgets just why it was so enormously interested in the book.

She Knows Her Nose Suits This Way Please

Mary Livingstone (Mrs. Jack Benny) has been planning, for quite a while, to have her nose remodeled by plastic surgeons. She thought it would help her screen career.

But just the other day, Mary decided that her nose must be quite all right as it is—because she was signed by Paramount for the comedy lead in "This Way Please."

You might like to know that some of the stars of Hollywood have perfectly magnificent bathtubs in their homes, very different from the "old-fashioned" kind back in Boston.

They are twice as large, for one thing, and what's more, they have trick showers that squirt sideways from the rim of the tub, so as not to get one's hair wet. (Wouldn't it be wonderful to be a movie star?)

Dizzy Dean Raises Old Puzzle Over The Bean Ball Rule

AUSTEN LAKE

IT WILL SEEM STRANGE TO ANYONE who remembers the killing of Ray Chapman, the Cleveland shortstop, and divers skull fracturings from time to time, that the National League should find it necessary to admonish Dizzy Dean for throwing the pernicious bean ball at the heads of the New York Giants.

Not indeed that the National League president came out candidly and accused Dizzy of malicious intent to bean the Giant batters. The announcement of Dizzy's $50 fine was framed in tactful language which read, "For actions on the ball field tending to incite a riot."

Up to the afternoon that Chapman lost his life, the batters assumed full responsibility to ducking, flopping in the dust or keeping one foot in the water bucket.

It was an accepted custom, condoned if not sanctioned, for the pitchers to heave at the batters' heads for purposes of intimidation, and the occasional skull-fracturings were acknowledged as a routine risk of the game—deplorable of course, but an inherent hazard of the sport.

The beanball was regarded by both sides as an impersonal practice, though sometimes personal malice entered into the equations between pitcher and batter, in which the latter accepted the risk and adopted what measures of resprisal he could by luring the pitcher within spike-wounding range by bunting along the first base line.

* * *

Umpires Dodge Responsibility

BUT THE KILLING OF CHAPMAN WAS viewed as a regrettable calamity which tended to bring disrepute on the pure, sporting qualities of the national pastime. So a set of anti-bean-ball laws were framed with a scale of penalties for the first, second and third offenses.

The punishments were clear. But then, too, the punishments for first and second degree murder were also clear, though many a jury hesitates to condemn a female defendant who pleads that a shot rang out while they wrestled for the gun and all went blank and black.

So, it was put up to the umpires to determine whether the pitcher was trying to locate the plate or attempting to avoid it and also to decide, in all beaning instances, whether the pitcher's effort had been accidental or honest.

It was a delicate decision, and the umpires were quick to avail themselves of the familiar legalistic dodge that the human eye is incapable of interpreting the human mind, and thus refused to enforce the bean ball rules.

The umpires stifled suspicion, reading the pitchers' intent as being strictly honest, and the president of the league had no recourse but to interpret them the same way.

Thus when the Yankee pitcher, Carl Mays, denied he had aimed at the head when he felled Chapman, the doubt was not [illegible] proved as it was never confirmed, and the verdict was allowed to languish between Mays, his pastor, or lawyer and his soul.

* * *

Defense by Famed Shower-Bath Lawyer

SIMILARLY DEAN HAS SOUGHT REFUGE in his constitutional right to avoid self-incrimination and states that his temporary lapse in control last Wednesday traced to a malignant attack of the nervous twitters, induced by having a balk called against him by the umpires.

The umpires, he says, are coarse-grained people at best, and the balk started a tumult in his soul, which so jangled the nervous impulses as they flowed 'twixt brain and muscle that the delicate co-ordination which the pitching science requires was upset.

It was a purest coincidence, he says, which caused his pitches to drift toward the noggins of the Giant batters instead of scaling off toward infinity or among the patrons of the grandstand—just a chancy phenomenon which has no explanation. So he says.

Coming, as it does, from one of the game's foremost locker-room lawyers, this raises the old question of where the thin, wavering line lies between honest and heinous intent.

The glove fighters stab thumbs into opponents' eyes, either by mistake or to produce temporary and sometimes permanent blindness for the advancement of the evening's fortune.

The football athletes occasionally clout each other on the kidneys, liver or the base of the brain, producing varieties of concussion and disorder, though the burden of proof of their acts is on the officials as to whether the intent was to remove an impediment momentarily from their path or to remove the impediment instantly and completely from the game.

Also in baseball the players are equipped with sharp, steel gouges on the soles of their shoes, and when these spikes cut down a baseman in a swirl of dust and swiftly intertwined bodies, no mortal mind can distinguish whether the runner had mutilation in his mind or was impelled by the healthy exuberance of the human animal.

* * *

Acquitted of Mayhem, Guilty of Disorder

Thus up to the instant last Wednesday when Dizzy Dean stopped throwing bean balls, alleged of course, and began pitching punches at members of the Giant opposition, his intent was befogged and, therefore, without legal significance in the eyes of the umpires.

But there was no doubt as to the intent of Dizzy's punches, and so he was charged and convicted of "actions tending to incite a riot." And to keep the ends of justice nicely balanced, Jimmy Ripple of the Giants, who had successfully ducked Dizzy's alleged bean balls, was plastered with a like $50, though, of the two, he had stood to suffer the greater injury.

Some day, inevitably, another batter like Chapman of the Cleveland team will forget to duck at the exact split-second, and there will be another temporary agitation against the bean ball. But it will survive as a useful tool in the pitcher's kit, employed to frighten the batters into submission.

[illegible] there are some batters so robust in the region of the skull [illegible] accept a fast pitch to the side of the bean with [illegible] result if by doing so it would remove a rival pitcher from the game for a week or month or season, according to the sliding scale of penalties.

GROVE Hurls Against TIGERS

MICKEY'S MEN DOING WELL

By JOE CASHMAN

They're taking the wraps off Robert Moses Grove to see what his ancient southpaw fin can do about repairing the shattered confidence of the Red Sox as Detroit's snarling Tigers invade the Fens this afternoon for a two-game series.

It's no soft job Ol' Mose is being handed. Our lads have dropped eight of their last ten starts and find themselves down in seventh place after the Indian massacre.

But if there's anybody around the Yawkey Yard who can stem the tide it's the same Mr. Grove.

"Lefty" hasn't been in the best of shape this Spring. He came up with an agonizing backache just before the race started, and he contracted a heavy cold on the recent Western trip.

BOW TO INDIANS, 16-5

In spite of these handicaps, though, he's pitched steady ball in every effort. That's because he knows how to pitch.

The same can be said of altogether too few of the Fenway flingers.

When the two bottom hitters in the opposing lineup can get six hits and four bases on balls in the course of a game, such as happened during Cleveland's 16 to 5 triumph yesterday, it's more than bad home pitching. It's also careless and dumb hurling.

The Tigers, making their first local appearance of the season, arrived here from Philadelphia, where they beat the A's the past two afternoons after dropping five straight decisions to Mack's mates earlier.

The Jungleers have undergone quite a revamping since last they were around these parts.

WALKER BATTING .400

"Hammering Hank" Greenberg, out all last year with a broken wrist, is back on first base and whacking the fences with all his former fury.

Manager Cochrane recovered from his 1936 ailments, is doing his share of catching.

"Jo Jo" White, a forgotten man the past two seasons, is again the regular center fielder.

At third base is a newcomer answering to the name of Gilbert English, who spent last season at Toledo, where he hit .335.

SICKENING GAME

Rookies have had to bear most of the mound burden to date.

Roxie Lawson and Jake "Lefty" Wade have been the most effective workmen.

While scoffing at the Bengals' boxmen every rival manager has a world of respect for the Detroit entry.

Boston fans certainly hope the Tigers don't make good Pilot Joe's boast during this visit. And so does Pilot Joe and his battered mound ones.

In its 25 years existence, Fenway Park has never witnessed a slaughter more sickening than the Indians' 16 to 5 Thursday triumph which carried them into first place.

They started against Johnny Marcum, previously undefeated, and continued against "Fritz" Ostermueller, "Lefty" McKain, Ted Olson and Wes Ferrell until they had collected 21 hits and 10 bases on balls.

CRONIN GETS THREE

All 10 of the invaders who participated in the massacre made at least one safety. No less than 55 of them went to bat with Lyn Lary stepping up seven times in a nine-inning game.

And the funny part of it was that the Sox were in the running most of the way.

After spotting the enemy a five-run lead, the natives came back to chase Johnny Allen with a four-run barrage and trailed against Willis Hudlin by only two runs until the seventh.

The Indians finally cinched the verdict with a three-run rally in the seventh frame, however, and added seven more after two were out in the awful eighth.

Cronin, his cheek bandaged, showed the injury and a three day lay-off hadn't effected his batting eye by getting three blows in five trips to the platter to boost his average up to .447.

But Joe couldn't carry the load alone.

Nathan Mann Manhandles Blunt

WINNING

Bees Oppose PIRATES

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 21—Boston [illegible] arrived here this morning for a two game series with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Boston's starting pitcher today will be Ace Danny MacFayden. The [illegible] will counter with Joe Bowman, who has been winning consistently since his shift to the Smoky City from the Phillies.

The Bees are on their toes. They won both of their games in Cincinnati and are determined to reach the first division before they return home.

The addition of Roy Johnson and Wally Berger to the outfield has given them a punch that had been missing during the first month of the campaign. Their pitching has been excellent all year.

Two first year men won the Cincinnati games. Lou Fette pitched four-hit ball there in Wednesday's night game to win, 3-1, and then Jim Turner came back in the final game to give the Reds only five hits in his 4-1 victory.

Feature of the final Cincy game were two home runs by Vince DiMaggio, young Bees center fielder, who looked like the world's worst [illegible] baseman and hitter down South two months ago.

The Coast boy has perked up considerably since being returned to his normal centerfield position, and will work there regularly while left handers are opposing the club.

The Pirates, too, have been going at a merry clip. They swept the last series with the Bees in Boston and just took two of three from the Phils here. They are now four and on-half games ahead of the second place Cards.

So good is the team going in first that Lloyd Waner, a star outfielder for the past decade, is unable to oust Woody Jensen from the winning lineup.

Collins Denies Sox And Tigers in Deal

General Manager Eddie Collins of the Red Sox today spiked all rumors that there was any deal hanging fire between the Sox and the Detroit Tigers. He said if there were any negotiations in progress with the Tigers for an exchange of players he knew nothing about them.

Rumors had it that Wesley Ferrell, the Sox's star right hander and Eric McNair, last year's regular shortstop, were to go to the Tigers for Eldon Auker, a submarine right-hand hurler, and Pete Fox, a speedy right-hand and slugging outfielder.

Helen Jacobs, Partner Lose

Paris, May 21 (AP)—The French combination of Mmes. Colette Boergner and Simone Iribarne, sprang an upset today by eliminating Helen Hull Jacobs of the United States and Mrs. Hilda Krahwinkel Sperling of Germany, 8-6, 2-6, 7-5, in the third round of the French doubles tennis championship.

Price Too Long On Braddock

New York, May 21 (INS)—The Broadway "books" may be holding James J. Braddock at 4-1 for the Louis fight in Chicago but, take it from Gene Tunney, they must be suffering from a touch of the sun or something. In fact, I fear the gentleman clearly suspects them of having a frayed cuff or two lying around loose in the family closet. Briefly, he likes Louis but not his price.

You, of course, recall Mr. Tunney? He's the man who really wrote [illegible] and one night in Philadelphia [illegible] Dempsey across the countenance with a first edition, bound in morocco.

Anyhow, he says Braddock [illegible] 4-1 for two reasons—and the [illegible] one is Braddock.

ODDS MAY GO HIGHER

"No man as courageous and tough as Jim Braddock can logically be 4-1 in a prize fight," said he. "You say the price may go higher? Then, somebody's making a big mistake. It's much closer than that."

It's much closer, [illegible] only because Braddock [illegible] to be too lightly dismissed but also because Joe Louis has started back faster than he came up. Listening to Mr. Tunney I got the impression that he [illegible] Louis as a man who used to be great and Braddock as another who used to be good.

"Louis," he said, carefully, "should win this one. A year and a half ago, it wouldn't have been a contest. For Louis was the greatest 21-year-old fighter we ever had.

"But sudden wealth and natural laziness have done for him what no opponent could have hoped to do. They've cut his efficiency by 50 per cent."

BRADDOCK STILL GOOD

And Braddock?

"A light heavyweight with promise ten years ago," the old champion declared, choosing his words carefully. "Today—well, what can you expect? Certainly not too much. He was a good hitter in 1928, with a good left hook. He also had a good straight left, a little slow perhaps, but still good.

"But he reached the peak and then started down hill, losing to third and fourth raters. His come-back to win the heavyweight championship was an almost miraculous thing but—he wasn't facing a Joe Louis that night, not even a sub-normal Joe Louis."

And, therefore, what? Just this:

"Anybody that Louis can hit, he can beat. And I'm pretty certain that Louis not only can but will hit Braddock."

Auto Races at Readville May 31

No fewer than 30 top notch automobile race drivers, men equal to the task of driving at Indianapolis but prevented from so doing by one cause or another, will strut their stuff at the Readville Motor Speedway on the afternoon of May 31 in the introductory series of races for the outdoor season sponsored by the Boston Readville Racing Association. In all, six events will be run off in addition to the time trials.

PURPLE '36 Champion, THREAT

B. C. LOOMS AS DARK HORSE

They like the Rams to win their first New England title in the 51 years of competition.

And they don't expect them to fold up this year as they did a year back, when Holy Cross took advantage of the lapses and went on to win another in its long string of titles.

However, the wise ones are not overlooking the Crusaders today and tomorrow. One [illegible] on the part of the Rams [illegible] mean that Holy Cross will be the successful [illegible] defender.

GOWELL DOUBTFUL STARTER

Maine, which was expected to offer stiff competition, was severely cramped when Johnny Gowell, favorite in both hurdles, pulled a muscle and is apparently withdrawn.

Boston College, with several [illegible] is the dark horse. If the [illegible] of the teams are cutting each other's throats, the Eagles of Jack Ryder can sandwich in enough points on their own [illegible] to capture the championship.

It's a difficult task to predict the many winners what with some 11 champions and a grand total of 47 title winners back from a year ago.

It is undoubtedly the finest array of track and field athletes in the history of the New England [illegible] several of whom had [illegible] to go on to later I. C. 4 A. titles.

Larry Scanlon of Holy Cross defends both dashes and Boston College's Dick G[illegible] is out to make it two in a row in the 440.

KISHON VS. ROWE

Gil may attempt to double in the 220. In this event he may cut down his chances of running a record as he is going against Ed Cook of Williams, his most worthy opponent.

Dimitri Zaitz, our Russian friend from Boston College, returns to the wars after a year's absence. He has [illegible] on a new [illegible] record. He may go as far as 53 feet which would constitute an exceptional achievement.

There will be a merry battle of the hammer throwers when Bates' Irv Kishon mates up again with Rhode Island's [illegible] and Rowe.

Kishon, 1935 champion and record holder and Rowe, 1936 champion, may be expected to do big things when they again clash in the discus.

Tennis Enthusiasm High, Says Niles | Sees Record Entry In Hearst Tourney

By JACK CONWAY

DAVE NILES, chairman of the men's division of the Hearst New England tennis championships, which open at the Harvard courts on June 28, tells me there has been a tremendous increase in tennis interest during the past few years.

Mr. Boston

"There are thousands of new tennis players each year," declared Niles. "They are continually being offered better facilities. In the Greater Boston area, there are numerous private tennis clubs, while the various municipalities as well as the State have also given tennis a helping hand in the form of additional courts."

Dave is a brother of the famous Nat Niles, one of the greatest tennis players ever to represent New England.

"Nat was rated No. 2 in the 1917 tennis list," said Dave proudly. "Over a seven year period, he was in the first five on five occasions. Nat proved his right to be rated with the greatest tennis players of all time."

Dave is also a good tennis player, but derives his chief enjoyment out of officiating at big matches, and in handling tournament play. His experience as a player, official and as a conductor of tournaments will prove of great value in the staging of the Hearst New England tennis championships.

I asked Dave how many entries he expected in this tournament.

"I look for a record number of entries," was the quick reply. "We'll have our troubles handling the entry list, it will be so large, but you may be assured that all who participate will receive every opportunity to prove their ability."

"One must be in good condition to play winning tennis," said Niles. "Plenty of sleep, as well as long practice sessions, are necessary to put one on edge for an important tournament."

RETURN OF YVON ROBERT

THE RETURN of Yvon Robert, world champion, to the wrestling wars will cause a pickup in the mat game. The young Frenchman is a first class wrestler and an exceptionally good showman. He possesses more than his share of color.

Robert had the misfortune to get one of his legs broken in a Washington bout with Cliff Olson last November. There were long months in the hospital much like George Holland is enduring. After his discharge from the hospital, Robert was forced to take his training easily until he gradually got into good condition.

During a recent visit to Boston, Robert told Paul Bowser he was prepared to sweep back into action early next month.

With Robert back in action, the various title contenders should feel happy. Yvon is a carefree youth who has supreme confidence in his own ability, and is certain to take on all-comers.

HARVARD INVADES NEW HAVEN

IT WILL BE a confident Harvard track team that will oppose Yale at New Haven tomorrow. The Crimson's victory over Dartmouth last Saturday gave an idea of the vast improvement made in the Harvard track team since the season started.

Harvard started its outdoor season without 50 members of last year's squad. It still possessed many athletes almost certain to win first places, but it lacked men who figured to finish second and third.

New material has been developed, while some former mediocre athletes have improved and are now close to the star stage.

ANN MARSTERS' BEST BETS FOR TODAY

ANN MARSTERS

Ann Marsters, only girl handicapper, today picked LEE HASTINGS to win the fifth race at Narragansett Park, while VOTE BOY is her choice to finish first in the fourth race.

LEE HASTINGS and VOTE BOY are fast steppers when right, and the last minute dope from the stables is that they will be ready to step on high today.

Miss Marsters will wager $2 to win on each of her selections.

Ann Marsters' Best Bets

$2 Win, Vote Boy, Narragansett 4th
$2 Win, Lee Hastings, Narragansett 5th
Bankroll $469.60—Day's Play $4

Walter O'Hara has given Miss Marsters $1000, under the terms of which $500 has already been donated to the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American-Sunday Advertiser.

The other $500 is being used by Miss Marsters as a betting stake to determine whether the races can be beaten if one is conservative and wagers on only two horses a day.

BANS Gear Shift BIKES

GIVES RACERS UNDUE LIFT

Murphy has ruled OUT all bikes with gear shifts. Positively no boy will be permitted to race with such apparatus.

[illegible]

M-G-M Will Film Death Story

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service

Los Angeles, May 21—Last January an anonymously authored story titled "Witness to a Murder" appeared in Harper's and created a lot of attention.

It was supposed to be the bona-fide story of a service station operator who became involved in a murder case which he happened to witness and whose whole life was changed as a [illegible]. His [illegible] ed he had to spend all his time as a witness and he was continually threatened.

Louella O Parsons

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has now bought that story and plans to put it on the screen without divulging the author's name. In fact, [illegible] they don't even know [illegible] that the check was paid through the magazine. [illegible] interested to hear that [illegible] who was so cool [illegible] Colbert's picture, [illegible] In Paris" is to be [illegible] his biggest [illegible] and that's [illegible] who knows [illegible].

* * *

A[illegible] and Warner Brothers [illegible] but amicably with no hard feelings on [illegible]. A[illegible] has been sought [illegible] roles at other [illegible] them an important part in Mae West's coming [illegible] Sal" and he [illegible] wait to [illegible].

[illegible] a great success [illegible] a program [illegible] work being exactly [illegible] production [illegible] for Warners has been [illegible] for so many months. A[illegible] has made up his mind not to wait any longer but to free lance. So I expect we'll be seeing him on the screen soon.

* * *

Part of Frank Shields now belongs to Mervyn Leroy. I don't know which part, but Mervyn has purchased half of his contract from Sam Goldwyn and [illegible] set out to give the tennis [illegible] breaks he has been [illegible]. His very first picture [illegible] Mervyn is "Good For [illegible]" the Carole Lombard [illegible] which co-stars Fernand Gravet and boasts of music by Rodgers and Hart. Understand [illegible] Frank has a pretty good part in this.

* * *

[illegible] Howard would rather [illegible] than an actor. [illegible] He telephoned today in [illegible] our remark that his [illegible] were trying to dissuade him [illegible] a producer, di[illegible] of "Bonnie [illegible]" to say that if he [illegible] director he would [illegible] role himself.

[illegible] that he is definitely [illegible] producing activities [illegible] in advance so that he [illegible] just what he wants [illegible] he acts he won't direct.

Speaking of Leslie reminds me [illegible] company, Associated Artists headed by Dudley Murphy which is trying to get Edward G. Robinson under contract to play the lead in "Lust For Life" and not Renowned Artists as we announced—our mistake.

* * *

A[illegible] John Cromwell had a [illegible] time testing Sigrid Gurie today with everyone on the lot sneaking in to get a peak at Sam Goldwyn's new discovery. She's set, you know, for the lead opposite Gary Cooper in "Marco Polo." . . . After five years, May Robson and MGM have parted company and May says she wants to free lance in the future. Her first picture "on the loose" is "The Perfect Specimen," at Warners.

Speaking of Warners Hal Wallis telephoned from mid-Atlantic today instructing William Keighley to go ahead on plans for "The Adventures of Robin Hood" with [illegible] to start August 1. . . . Robert Taylor isn't taking any chances being cancelled out of his trip to Honolulu this time. He's made his reservations for the day following the completion of "Broadway Melody" . . .

It has finally been decided what George Jessel is going to do with the Mervyn Leroy unit. George, who is just about our finest master of ceremonies, gets the title of "Story Doctor" and his first will be "The Great Garrick."

Snapshots of Hollywood

SHIRLEY ROSS' boy friend, EDDIE ANDERSON, presenting [illegible] with a [illegible] bracelet to [illegible] feelings; [illegible] RAINER'S cold keeping her home from the studio; ALICE TERRY and REX INGRAM living quietly in the valley where Rex is writing a book; PHYLLIS BROOKS and an attractive stranger a twosome at a night spot where was Wesley Ruggles?

FRANCES FARMER and LEIF ERIKSON at a club with LEIF getting a big hand when he obliged with a song; JUNE TRAVIS and DICK PURCELL once more reunited after a spat of two weeks; all the local shops sending their latest summer fashions to the "Firefly" set for JEANETTE MacDONALD to make her trousseau selections. She has no time to go shopping. That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Add Another Dancing Success

Joan Blondell, who has a leading role in "The King and the Chorus Girl," which opens at the Bowdoin tomorrow for a run through Tuesday.

In "Shall We Dance," Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers prove they are the screen's top-ranking dance team, even when it comes to doing a number on roller skates. Their latest success, today moved over to the RKO Boston to continue its run.

'King and Chorus Girl' Bowdoin Feature

The Bowdoin Square Theater, starting tomorrow and continuing through Tuesday, will offer a two-feature bill that includes a pair of the season's most entertaining pictures.

They are "The King and the Chorus Girl," introducing to American movie fans the Continental film idol Fernand Gravet, who is fast becoming this country's pet rave, and "History Is Made At Night," romantic comedy-drama co-starring the popular Charles Boyer and Jean Arthur.

Newport Premiere

A new play, "Sweet Sorrow," described as a romantic comedy, will have its premiere at the Newport Casino Theater sometime after the playhouse has opened its doors on July 13.

The exact date for the showing of this piece by Eric Swift, an English writer, has not been determined but it is to be numbered among the four new productions which The Actor-Managers will offer. The play's title takes its origin from the line in "Romeo and Juliet," "Parting is such sweet sorrow."

With the exception of several new plays in the repertory at Newport this summer, plans for this coming season practically parallel those of last year. As formerly there will be a different bill each week with six performances scheduled weekly four evenings, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and one matinee on Thursday, with the possible addition of another.

Lost and Found ads published in the American-Advertiser are broadcast over Radio Station WCOP each morning at 10:55 A. M., 8:55 A. M. on Saturdays, at no additional charge to the advertiser.

Astaire Film Moves to Boston

Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers' latest hit musical, "Shall We Dance," moves over to the RKO Boston today, following two record-breaking weeks at Keith Memorial.

This gay, frothy and tuneful musical film has been lavishly produced, boasts some of Astaire's and Rogers' best dancing and a flock of hummable tunes by the brothers Gershwin.

"Let's Call the Whole Thing Off" and "They Can't Take That Away From Me," are two of the most memorable of these song hits.

Astaire this time surpasses himself in designs for dancing, particularly in an engine room solo [illegible] to the impressive rhythm of the piston [illegible] which [illegible] are being [illegible] to America.

Harriet Hoctor, America's first ballerina, does some stunning ballet numbers and on her toes continues to be the loveliest thing to look at on stage or screen.

New Films At Gayety

Starting Sunday the New Gayety's screen feature will be "Green Light," co-starring Errol Flynn and Anita Louise with a supporting cast headed by Margaret Lindsay, Walter Abel, Henry O'Neil and Sir Cedric Hardwicke.

The co-feature will be "The Plot Thickens" with James Gleason, Zasu Pitts, Owen Davis, Jr., and Louise Latimer.

On Thursday the new picture program will include "Stolen Holiday," co-starring Kay Francis and Claude Rains, assisted by Ian Hunter, Alison Skipworth and Alex D'Arcy. "Find the Witness," with Charles Quigley and Rosalind Keith, will be the companion picture.

Compensation Bill Signed by Hurley

Compensation will be paid until children of the couple reach the age of 18. Another bill was signed decreasing the power of local liquor licensing boards.

So it seems that The Holland couldn't sleep and Rusty and all the rest of the Mercy Galaxy went back on him and he had nothing to do but think. (And no wise cracks from you or you or you). The busted gamb aches a bit, missing its little silver pal. The halls of St. Elizabeth's are altogether too quiet and there are no street noises. Why can't we have our old steel-tired milk wagons back? Who ever thought up the idea of silencing ash and garbage men? Why annoy the cats that make music on back fences? Whatever became of the bunch of steweys that used to make the welkin ring with "Sweet Ad-o-line?" Who started this bunk of quiet nights anyway? A man can't lie in bed and think constructively unless he has the traditional night noises to accompany his thoughts.

GEORGE HOLLAND

It's Goodman Swing Time At Met

By PEGGY DOYLE

Benny Goodman, defining the strange musical rhythm that has lifted him to the eminence of "King of Swing," calls swing "a simple state of ecstasy."

We wouldn't be knowing. Apparently, we're neither young enough nor old enough to be a swing initiate. At Swing-King Goodman's first show yesterday, the Met was jammed to the windowsills with cowlicked devotees still wet behind the ears and with a largish aggregation representing the white-haired generation. The rapt attention this unusual and mesmerized audience vouchsafed the Goodman and his celebrated swing band constitutes one of those minor miracles. You could have heard a gum drop during the hour and three-quarters that Goodman and his mad musicians held sway on the Met stage.

Benny Goodman

The only time the audience came out of its trance-like state was when Lionel Hampton played "Stompin' at the Savoy" on the vibraphone. This was a signal for the swing-fans to go to town in a concerted foot-tattoo that rivalled the rhythm behind the footlights for all-around swing.

The Goodman numbers included "Stardust," "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Sing, Sing, Sing," "Body and Soul" and "Dinah."

Dale Winthrop, girl dancer, did a "Swingin' Tap" as one of the featured numbers and Peg La Centra, a local girl, did splendidly by the two popular song hits, "There's a Lull in My Life" and "Let's Call the Whole Thing Off."

Larry Blake, a personable and talented young man who has just been signed by Universal and is being groomed for lead roles in the films, did some impressions of celebrities that were as skillfully done as they were unique in presentation. He caused to happen before your startled eyes—and by the mere lift of an eyebrow, the quirk of a lip or the narrowing of an eyelid—such film nabobs as Lionel Barrymore, Wallace Beery or Gregory Ratoff.

The Met's film feature for the week that a bright somebody suggested might be called "National Hookey Week" is "The Go Getter," Delmer Daves' adaption of one of Peter B. Kyne's famous Cappy Ricks magazine series.

Cappy, the picturesque old chap who owns steamships and operates them out of San Francisco to all parts of the world, is a lovable crosspatch as white-haired Charles Winninger personalizes him for [illegible].

Lovely, blond Anita Louise is Cappy's daughter and handsome George Brent is the go-getter who is put through a flock of fantastic tests by the irascible Ricks before the latter will permit him to marry his daughter.

Family Woes Revealed on Screen

American [illegible] writers on youth and its problems [illegible] of the [illegible] of the American family scene have merged their talents to write a motion picture of modern youth and its rebellion against the conventions of their parents.

The writers are Vina Delmar, author of "Bad Girl," "The Marriage Racket" and other best sellers, and Josephine Lawrence, author of "The Years Are So Long," "If I Had Four Apples" and the recent success "The Sound of Running Feet." The picture, "Make Way for Tomorrow," which [illegible] the Paramount and Fenway Theatres [illegible] Thursday, May [illegible] features Beulah Bondi, Victor Moore, Fay Bainter and Barbara Read in the leading roles with Thomas Mitchell, Porter Hall, Elisabeth Risdon and others in the supporting cast.

The story is an original by Miss Lawrence, a Newark, New Jersey, newspaperwoman who for many years conducted a [illegible] column for The Call of [illegible]. During those years Miss Lawrence said she discovered that the greatest number of letters coming to her for advice were about modern American [illegible] Most of these were from parents who were worried about the so-called excesses of modern youth, [illegible] letters from children [illegible] strict parents [illegible].

After [illegible] these problems and studied them, Miss Lawrence decided to write a story of the modern American family scene and its greatest problem and "Make Way for Tomorrow" was the result.

Miss Delmar was called in to adapt the story for the screen mainly because of her knowledge of modern young America and her sympathy with its objectives.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

A Nationwide Organization Devoted To American Youth in Aviation

By L. F. ROSS
Boston Wing Commander

Final steps in the organization of a new Junior Birdmen flight squadron are expected to be taken at the next meeting of a group of boys at the Watertown East Branch Library, Mt. Auburn and School streets, Watertown, on Tuesday night.

George B. Estes of 50 Winsor avenue, Watertown, formerly associated with the manufacturers of the Taylor Cub, will be sponsor of the new unit and the members will include the following:

John Philip D[illegible] 11, of 187 [illegible] Charles [illegible] of 34 [illegible] Mt. Auburn street, [illegible] with about 30 [illegible] charge of the [illegible] The speakers included Miss White, Estes, Nathan Bronski, Jack Bronski, "Dave" Adelstone, "Bill" Briggs, "Bob" Shea and the wing commander.

David Adelstone

The meeting was the result of enthusiasm and interest in Junior Birdmen activities and in model plane building aroused over an exhibit in the library. The exhibit was provided by members of the Shobe Memorial squadron of which Adelstone is now commander.

At the next meeting of the group, more members will be enrolled and ways will be taken to obtain the charter, rule book and officers' bars for the commander and captain.

All the boys are expected to take their Eagle test as soon as possible in order to obtain their free Eagle bar which is awarded when a grade of 75 or more is made. Some of the boys have been members for three months and are eligible now to take the test and receive their bars.

The new members will be permitted to take the test now but must wait for three months for their Eagle awards.

Lee Ernst and Harry Chubbuck, formerly of the Jamaica Fledglings squadron of Jamaica Plain, have resigned from that unit to form one of their own.

Louella Parsons, the Boston Evening American screen columnist has the entire presentation to deal from the dial deck.

Dear Program Planners: It might help perceptibly methinks, if when staging drama doings in Boston the people in the cast of characters be given as much to do as unannounced sound effects men. He gets rather an over abundance of the load to carry it seems when certain of such settings are wafted hereabouts. What's more he would quite likely appreciate being suffered upstage on the crowd roars cheering trains boats howling winds and whistles. At least, so he has been saying.

When next you hear the Yankee Networking quartet called "The Bachelors" just bear in mind that Oscar Smith, the cigar smoking basso becomes a Benedict tomorrow.

Miss Margery Curtis Drayton of Plymouth will be the bride. Her sister, Irene Curtis Drayton, will be bridesmaid and Tony Dooley, the "Bachelors'" boss, gets the best man assignment.

Now what to call "The Bachelors" after the knot is tied?

FACTORY, Mine Output AT PEAK

OIL PRODUCTION RATE HIGH

Both mine output and factory production in March reached new peaks for the recovery movement, according to the Alexander Hamilton Institute.

In the field of mining the output of petroleum in March exceeded 100,000,000 barrels for the first month in history.

The exact figure, according to a preliminary estimate was 106,780,000 barrels as compared with 93,173,000 barrels in February and with the previous high record of 97,652,000 barrels last December. The output in March represented an increase of 17.9 per cent over the 90,568,000 barrels produced in the corresponding month last year.

SOFT COAL AT NEW HIGH

The production of bituminous coal rose in March to 50,720,000 tons, a new high for the recovery movement. This compares with an output of 42,110,000 tons in February and with 31,527,000 tons in March last year. It is apparent, however, that the output in March this year was stimulated by the fear of a strike and that it exceeded consumption. Preliminary figures indicate that a corrective movement occurred in April following a settlement of the labor difficulties.

In the field of manufacturing automobile production jumped from 364,000 cars in February to 494,000 cars in March, a figure 17.3 per cent larger than the 421,000 cars manufactured in the corresponding month last year. During the first quarter, the production of automobiles totaled 1,238,000 this year as against 1,073,000 last year, an increase of 15.4 per cent despite the serious labor troubles with which the industry has had to contend this year.

STEEL INDUSTRY

The steel industry in March produced 5,220,000 tons of ingots as compared with 4,453,000 tons in February and with 3,343,000 tons in March last year. The March output this year was the largest monthly volume since the recovery movement began. The steel output during the first quarter amounted to 14,391,000 tons.

This was not only well in excess of the 9,353,000 tons produced in the same period last year but it exceeded the 13,897,000 tons produced in the first three months of 1929, the year in which the annual output was the largest on record.

The cotton textile mills in March increased their activity to a new all-time high, consuming 779,000 bales of raw cotton as against 664,000 in February and 551,000 in March last year.

Building contracts, on which manufacturing is considerably dependent, rose in March to a new peak for the recovery movement. The volume was 32.9 per cent larger than in the corresponding month of 1936.

New York, May 21—The thorough readjustment—to put it mildly—that the securities markets of the world have just undergone has removed one of the major dark clouds from the horizon. That is an immediate runaway boom, with an early crash.

[illegible] boom and a crash, but it was purely a correction of a speculative situation and will likely have nothing more than a passing influence on the strong business recovery that is underway, etc.

Abnormal INVENTORIES Absent

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Often of late the assertion is heard that the burdensome inventories accumulated by industry in the early months of the year will result in a sharp slump.

After intensive investigation Standard Statistics observes that there is no concrete evidence of top heavy inventories in any industry.

Therefore it stands to reason that if business is verging on a sharp slump a cause must be sought elsewhere and further than that it is far fetched to attempt to hook up the recent declines in the stock market with the inventory situation. Standard Statistics investigation in fact uncovered a demand that few thought existed. The advance ordering that took place early this year as a protective measure against rising wage, tax and commodity prices just about equalled the demand that developed in most lines. Thus what many managements intended to be a forehanded policy actually proved to be a simple covering of actual needs.

* * *

Thus if the margin by which many manufacturers and retailers bought ahead just about equalled the margin by which they underestimated demand it is necessary to examine other factors likely to promote the sharp business slump some predict. The drop in commodity prices, and the soft pedalling of the stimulating force behind the rise—inflation—puts such markets on a much more solid basis. Effects of commodity prices on business should therefore be limited to the amount by which ultimate consumption tapers off, and this is not expected to be great. Labor might become thrifty with its newly acquired wealth; the farm population might refuse to spend on better crop prospects; investors will bank larger dividend payments.

* * *

If all these things developed it would find reflection in a reduced demand for almost everything people need to buy and a sharp contraction in business volume would result. But other than being an ever-present possibility, which is only natural, we can not view them as serious probabilities.

* * *

Stock prices are behaving much better. The rallies of this week while undoubtedly generated by investment demand in the beginning were carried forward at an accelerated pace by quick turn traders who took advantage of the lack of offered stock. However, a temporary halt at levels coinciding with the highs of Thursday is logical. A quiet reaction or a session or so of irregularity will then suggest that prices in general are in a good position to steam forward and crush down the resistance that exists some two or three points higher up. Such a development will hearten bulls and lead to a broader assumption on their part that a definite turn has been made.

* * *

The resistance spoken of above lies in the area marked out on charts of the Dow-Jones averages during the week ended May 1. It appears on all three and represents the highs following the premature rally from the lows set in the heavy late April selling wave.

* * *

Notebook: Errata—Early this week the writer inadvertently wrote that Celanese was expected to show $3 per share in the first quarter . . . This should have read, "in the first half of the year" . . . Mission Corp is currently selling about $8 per share under its liquidating value . . . Chief holdings are Skelly Oil and Tide Water Associated . . . Inquiry on the stock is noted by the writer in several brokerage circles . . . Campbell, Wyant & Cannon Foundry is expected to show between $4 and $4.50 per share for 1937 . . . Which just about puts the stock in the "forgotten" class . . . It impresses this writer as worth looking up.

MARKET Tone FIRMER

RAIL SHARES LOWER

New York, May 21 (INS)—A firmer tone developed in the stock market today after an irregularly lower trend earlier. Communication shares touched off the modest rally, which slowed down around noon, leaving a number of pivotals still behind minus signs.

Postal Telegraph preferred advanced more than a point to above 9. International Telephone gained a large fraction to just under 11. Western Union and American Telephone also were in demand.

Most of the losses sustained by steels and motors were regained, with the former group ruling generally above previous closing levels. Rails continued irregularly lower and coppers displayed an easier tone.

Farm implements, amusements and utilities were among leaders on the upside. Oils, aviations and rubbers were mixed. Loew's gained better than a point. Oliver Farm jumped 2 points.

Bonds moved irregularly higher, with government obligations mixed. Grains and cotton showed little change, the former recovering part of early losses.

CURRENT TOPICS

Financial circles searching for queues to business trends noted inclement weather checked retail trade this week. In leading regions of the country, however, sales ranged from 8 to 20 per cent ahead of the like week last year, Dun & Bradstreet reported.

The Federal Reserve Bank statement for the week ended May 19 showed the system had again left its holdings of U. S. government securities unchanged.

This, bankers said, bore witness to recent improvement in the government bond market. Steadiness in Treasury issues during the period covered by the statement contrasted with pronounced declines of a few weeks ago.

The French franc opened .00¼ of a cent lower at 4.64 cents. The pound sterling was unchanged at $4.94⅛.

New Financing Shrinks in Past Week

New York, May 21 (AP)—New financing the past week shrank to the smallest total this year as underwriters waited for a more favorable market for public offerings.

A compilation by Poor's Publishing Co. today showed a total of $14,916,000, compared with $36,600,645 the preceding week and $34,704,605 in the comparable week last year.

About half the total was municipal, amounting to $7,885,000, against $30,640,000 in the 1936 week.

Comments of Brokers

The outlook for the general market still contains a degree of uncertainty, and commitments should be made in junior bonds with great caution, and in high grade bonds only in the aforementioned short or near short term varieties.—F. H. Richardson, Southgate & Co.

It seems unlikely that the market will add materially to the gains already registered without encountering some temporary resistance, thus affording another opportunity to accumulate stocks in an orderly manner.—J. E. Molloy, Hornblower & Weeks.

In any event it is likely that the recovery will soon become selective—J. S. Wilson, Josephthal & Co.

A quieting down, with narrower oscillations for a period of 2 or 3 weeks would place the list in a better position for a sustained general upswing, in my opinion.—H. D. Comer, Paine, Webber & Co.

We would recommend retention of stocks rather than sale on strength and additions to holdings during the reactionary spells which are normal in an accumulation market.—E. A. Pierce & Co.

It might be well to remember that often the early part of an intermediate swing in either direction takes a zig-zag course.—G. M. P. Murphy & Co.

The main character of the market is unchanged, and there is nothing scheduled that promises to stimulate important buying for the pull.—J. P. Maher, Shields & Co.

Purely trading commitments may well be reduced on any further bulges, with a view toward replacing them on reactions. Longer swing commitments, we feel, may be maintained.—J. S. Bache & Co.

Carloadings Up In Past Week

Washington, May 21 (AP)—The Association of American Railroads reported today 773,669 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ending last Saturday.

This was an increase of 6188 cars, or 0.8 per cent, compared with the preceding week; an increase of 92,261, or 13.5 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 190,179, or 32.7 per cent, compared with two years ago.

WOOL Goods Steady, SLOW

SPOT BUSINESS LIGHT

New York, May 21—Business in wool goods markets was desultory, but prices were steady and mills reported a steady flow of duplicate orders which were written without any attempts on the part of buyers to shade prevailing prices, according to the New York Wool Top Exchange Service.

Spot business was light and confined mostly to summer goods, such as gabardines, flannels, tropical worsted, and materials suitable for sports jackets. The exchange service says that mill continued busy on contracts which are expected to keep machinery employed during the first half of the year at least and will carry a number of mills safely through the summer months.

Some improvement was noted in women's wear markets, where buyers began to place moderate-sized orders on fall coatings and dress goods. Retail sales of clothing were reported slightly better than they have been, while women's summer coats and sports wear moved in fair volume. New business in wool blankets and knitted wear, with the exception of swim suits, was slow, but mills did not press for business, having enough business on their books to keep active for some time. Swim suits were in better demand at wholesale and retail, as is usually the case at this time of year.

MEN'S WEAR PRICES

Men's wear prices continued to hold at the levels recently established, and no attempts were made to force concessions. In fact, a number of mills are refraining from pushing sales because of their inability to offer satisfactory deliveries. Stocks in mill hands are light, and jobbers' supplies are far from burdensome, despite complaints frequently heard as to the paucity of orders for spot goods. New business during the week was affected to some extent by the fact that clothing shops here shut down for the purpose of signing contracts with the union, granting increases in pay which became effective the first of the week.

Unfilled orders for men's wear are still estimated at above the 50,000,000-yard mark. In addition, resumption of activity in the automobile plants has served to speed up production and deliveries of automobile upholstery cloths, which were quiet for some weeks because of labor unrest. Sales of overcoatings were steady, and topcoatings showed some improvement.

WOMEN'S WEAR

In women's wear markets, business was mostly confined to fall merchandise. A few mills succeeded in selling large amounts of coatings for delivery during the summer months, and others did a fair business on dress goods. Cloak and suit houses continued to ship out large quantities of summer merchandise, chiefly white coats.

Prices on all types of women's wear clothes are steady, although there is considerable employment of spun rayon for the purpose of bringing down values on a number of weaves. These spun rayons are becoming more popular, and may cut into the consumption of wool by women's wear mills.

Big BUSINESS; BIG Men

By B. C. FORBES

News about leading men and leading industries:

Herbert Hoover, at a large private gathering, consisting mostly of business men, received a tremendous ovation in New York this week. America's only living ex-President was manifestly pleased. He got another thrill when a professional "mind-reader" told him what he, Mr. Hoover, was thinking about. It had nothing to do with re-entering the White House!

Two men of affairs scheduled to receive honorary degrees next month from leading colleges are Henry L. Doherty, gas, oil, utility pioneer, and Frank W. Smith, retiring president of Consolidated Edison of New York.

* * *

Walter P. Chrysler talked very cheerily to me the other evening about the prosperity his mammoth corporation is enjoying. He has not permitted labor developments to depress him. He is as genial, forceful, forward-looking as ever. Incidentally, no other enterprise in the world has matched the growth of the Chrysler corporation during the last dozen years. From picayune totals, his sales have in certain recent years ranked second, in dollar value, among all motor manufacturers.

The trio of business-financial men attracting most attention today are the new masters of the vast Van Sweringen railway and real estate empire, namely, Robert R. Young, Frank F. Kolbe and Allan P. Kirby. They confide that their first objective is to simplify greatly the labyrinth of companies piled on top of one another. Meanwhile, Mr. Young, particularly, is applying himself to learning railroad operation. He expresses satisfaction with present managements and states there is no intention of disturbing managerial personnel.

While Messrs. Young and Kolbe have furnished a substantial part of the purchase price of Midamerica Corporation, the controlling company, by far the biggest investor is Mr. Kirby. The Kirby fortune was founded a generation ago, through association with Frank W. Woolworth's Five-and-Ten-Cents stores. He is more active in philanthropy than in business.

Nelson Rockefeller has developed as the business ace of the third generation of Rockefellers. John D., third, is primarily interested in the philanthropies inaugurated by his grandfather and broadened by John D., Jr. Nelson's pet enterprise is Radio City. Associates tell me that he has inherited not a little of the oil king's business acumen. He is on the job most industriously.

* * *

Despite the vexing labor troubles which have been experienced there, California visitors now in New York, including R. Stanley Dollar and George I. Cochran, declare that conditions are encouraging. Anti-business agitation has considerably subsided.

* * *

Every oil leader I run across is better satisfied now with the status of the industry than they have been at any time in years. Consumption is constantly expanding.

* * *

When I asked David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America: "How soon can the public expect to enjoy television at reasonable cost?" he shook his head and replied: "Ask me something easier. It's coming, of course; but how soon it will become practical to bring television into the home, I wouldn't venture to predict. You fellows have no comprehension of the terrifically complicated mechanical and other problems involved." The radio industry is on the up-tack.

Movie magnates talk more cheerfully today than in a long time. Some companies are doing very well financially. Colored films are called a coming development.

Several important independent steel manufacturers are not at all satisfied with the deal Myron C. Taylor, head of the United States Steel Corporation, quietly made with John L. Lewis. Their attitude is that Mr. Taylor conceded too much. They vow they are to put up a fight against surrendering.

Internal Revenue Collections Increase

Washington, May 21 (INS)—Internal revenue collections last month showed an increase of nearly $100,000,000 over April, 1936, the treasury reported today.

Revenue from all sources in April amounted to $300,280,000 compared with $202,779,000 collected during the corresponding period a year ago.

For the ten months of the current fiscal year, internal revenue receipts totalled $3,544,656,000, an increase of $684,000,000 over last year.

April liquor taxes produced $47,122,000, a gain of $5,708,000, while tobacco levies amounted to $43,243,000, a rise of $1,262,000.

La Salle's Smooth Performance Reveals Many Improvements in Automobile Travel

JAMES H. DODGE

Automobile Editor

By HERBERT D. WILSON

In the belief that most of our readers are interested in the performance characteristic of certain automobile models, we have held a series of conversations with Herbert D. Wilson, nationally known performance tester of the Hearst organization, who has just completed personal tests of the 1937 automobiles.

His reactions will be set down in detailed stories that will form a weekly feature in the Boston Evening American.

The eighth of this series, carried herewith, is on the La Salle V-8 series.

THIRTY years ago this month a suggestion for allaying the the hostility of horsemen was urged upon members of the Missouri Automobile Association by its president.

Whenever they encountered a team of horses on the road that gave indication of taking fright, Missouri motorists were counselled "to drive to one side of the road, hiding your machine if possible behind a clump of trees, emerge, gently take the bridles of the horses and lead them past the automobile, giving the farmer a cheery slap on the back and a hearty 'jolly' that will send him on his way feeling that indeed the automobile is prince of them all."

Last week's trip of over 1000 miles in the LaSalle V-8 recalled this item because of the contrast of present day motoring with that of 1907. Thousands of miles of smooth concrete, quiet motors, dependable care and few horses make the long distance trip today as commonplace as against the precarious adventure of 1907.

When we were passing through Elkhart, Indiana, on the way to Detroit, it brought to mind a trip that I had made in 1907 to that city. Only 100 miles from Chicago, yet 30 years ago it took 12 hours each way because, while on the road, we had four blowouts and seven punctures.

Feeling of Safety

The thing that impressed me most about the LaSalle V-8 on this trip was the feeling of assurance that nothing would happen or could happen to disturb the smooth flow of power that carried us over the road at any desirable speed. There seemed to be no limit to the cruising range and the acceleration was equal to every expectancy.

Subsequent trials on a best straightaway proved the ability of the car to hold a top speed of 98 miles per hour with an acceleration from 20 to 60 miles an hour in high gear in 13½ seconds.

Larger Engine

This increased engine size has also permitted slower engine speeds, for while the 1936 LaSalle motor turned up 3240 revolutions per minute at 60 miles an hour and developed only 105 horsepower, the 1937 V-8 gives 20 more horsepower but turns over at 2780 revolutions per minute at 60 miles an hour.

Engineers estimate this means 25 per cent less wear in the higher speed ranges and, of course, this accounts for much of the fine smoothness of the car at high road speeds.

Not all of the trip was over concrete roads, for some of the macadam encountered was studded with small six-inch holes that so noticeably test the front end spring action of a car.

The spring ratio in the 1937 LaSalle have been changed and the knee-action at the front improved, which not only gives a soft action to the front wheels on choppy roads but also a smooth, firm ride at high speeds. Then, too, the Hypoid axles on this year's car reduce the unsprung weight which also improves the riding qualities.

No More Squeaks

The leaves of the spring are separated by waxed liners which require no lubrication or spring covers. This not only prevents squeaks but, also, furnishes a constant lubrication between the spring leaves of a type that insures the best possible action.

Ease of handling at all road speeds was very noticeable. Steering was light and positive, while cross winds failed to affect the car as much as formerly.

Firm, powerful braking was apparent throughout the trip; the shoes on this year's LaSalle brakes have been increased from two to two and a quarter inches in width, giving an increased total braking area of 220 square inches.

Throughout the exterior design of this year's model speed lines are apparent from the graceful radiator ornament at the front to the roomy trunk in the rear. Beauty without is matched by luxury within.

Adjustable Seats

The interior of the 1937 LaSalle is an excellent example of Cadillac craftsmanship. Clean, smooth lines are emphasized by careful detail in the trim, arm rests for relaxed comfort, and the careful placing of controls for greatest convenience.

Front seats have been quickly adjustable in the last several years, but this year LaSalle features an adjustable seat that automatically tilts to make the forward position a snugger one for the short statured driver.

Passenger seat widths are increased three to four inches, while leg and headroom have been appreciably bettered. This additional interior height was accomplished by lowering the floor, which could be done because the Hypoid axle does not create a high floor obstruction.

Mechanically, one of the noticeable improvements in the new car is in the transmission. The gears in the all quiet, synchro-mesh transmission respond to the shifter ever more smoothly and, because of newly developed pin-type synchronizers, the shift may be made much faster than formerly.

Gears can be shifted from second to high in less than one-fifth of a second; also, the movement of the shifting lever is much shorter.

Many New Features

Improved valve silencers and carburetion give better performance and quieter operation. This year's automatic choke seems to work much better than in the 1936 model.

Other improvements include a large single muffler of a new type that has a spreader in the tail-pipe which eliminates the throaty exhaust noise incident to high speed driving; quiet clutch throwout bearings; dual downdraft carburetors with concentric fuel chambers, stronger connecting rods and a stronger propeller shaft.

La Salle has never turned out a car so outstanding in every detail as its 1937 model. Selling at a remarkably low price, the car offers performance to match any situation. Although it is classed as a middle-price car, it offers many of the advantages of motor cars in the most expensive range. The car is so new that it totally supplants its predecessors and creates a new and significant meaning to the phrase, "LaSalle performance."

Performance, Major Specifications

ACCELERATION—With the wind, 20 to 60 miles an hour in high gear, 13 2-5 seconds; against the wind, 20 to 60 miles an hour in high gear, 13 3-5 seconds.

ENGINE—V-Eight. Bore and stroke, 3 3-8x4½. Piston displacement, 322 cubic inches. Taxable horsepower, 36.45 Maximum brake horsepower, 123 at 3400 revolutions per minute.

COMPRESSION RATIO—6.25. With option of 5.75.

REAR AXLE GEAR RATIO, (5-passenger, 4-door sedan) —3.92.

TIRE SIZE—7.00x16.

WHEELBASE—124 inches.

By lowering the floor and adding four inches in wheelbase, increased leg room has been made possible in the 1937 model. Seats are wider and upholstery is rich in its simplicity.

Encyclopedia, Vol. 5, Ready Tomorrow

Overheard at a redemption station where thousands of Boston Evening American readers each day take advantage of that amazing offer in connection with the new Standard American Encyclopedia:

"I went to college but reading the encyclopedia has taught me plenty of things I didn't get in college . . ."

"When I get the whole 15 volumes I'm going to place them in my waiting room and I'll still be able to get at them, too."

You can join the throng that every day in the week passes through the various coupon redemption stations in Greater Boston and obtains these books which are being made available at a ridiculously low cost.

This is all that you have to do:

Clip the coupons as they appear each day in the Boston Evening American and when you get six consecutively numbered bring them to any redemption station. Then with 44 or 68 cents you can get your volume.

The 44-cent volume is for the "home" edition while the other is for the "luxury lifetime" binding.

3d Diorama Prize Offer in Sunday Advertiser

Sunday is only two days away—a statement which in itself is not unusual, but to boys and girls of New England it is highly significant.

For at time in the Boston Sunday Advertiser will appear the third of the famous World Museum Dioramas—a cutout in the new and fascinating game for boys and girls not yet of high school age.

And in that same edition of the Sunday Advertiser will be the names of 13 boys and girls, winners of $50 in weekly prizes, who did the best job of cutting out and building the Diorama which appeared in the comic section of last Sunday's Advertiser.

Fifteen dollars are awarded for first prize. $10 for second, $5 third prize and ten $2 prizes.

The rules are very simple. Here's all that has to be done:

When you get the Sunday Advertiser turn to the comic section and cut out Number Three in the World Museum Diorama. Then build it up for your World Museum.

When it is completely assembled, send it to the Boston Sunday Advertiser Diorama Contest Editor before midnight of the following Wednesday.

Only boys and girls below the regular high school age are eligible. State your grade and school when submitting your diorama.

MONEY TO LOAN

Bridging the Gap . . .

Everyone knows that it is impossible to calculate in advance the effect of sickness or other misfortune on the family budget. If savings are inadequate, the Shawmut Monthly Payment Plan provides to persons of good reputation and regular income, located in Boston and nearby communities, a dignified solution of temporary financial problems. You may now borrow on this type of loan at a lower cost than ever before, with systematic liquidation over an extended period. You need not be a depositor to use this service, available at the main office or at our 16 Shawmut branches.

120 Years of Peace And Friendship

THE UNITED STATES and Canada shake hands next Sunday in celebration of the sincerest friendship which has existed between any two neighbor countries of modern times.

At Niagara Falls a committee representing both countries will commemorate the one hundred and twentieth anniversary of the signing of the Rush-Bagot agreement between Great Britain and the United States.

This agreement, which was actually signed on April 29, 1817, pledged both Canada and the United States to let their border forts fall into ruin and that no government boat larger than a revenue cutter should be kept on the Great Lakes.

The good relations between Canada and the United States are all the more significant in these troubled times when it is recalled that it was not a pledged treaty between the two countries that was negotiated one hundred and twenty years ago but ONLY A "GENTLEMEN'S AGREEMENT."

The Rush-Bagot agreement may be cancelled at any time by either party after six months' notice.

That notice has never been given by either the United States or Canada. And from present indications it will not be given within the lifetime of any living person, for that bond forged more than a century ago between the two great English-speaking countries of the Western Hemisphere was never stronger than it is today.

THIS celebration ought to be food for thought for those countries in Europe which live side by side only to devise means of annihilating one another.

We salute our neighbor to the North on this anniversary of a friendship that WE FEEL SURE WILL NEVER BE BROKEN.

A National Shrine

THE completed restoration of the Illinois village of New Salem, where Abraham Lincoln spent his youth and where his character was forged a century ago, adds a new national shrine dedicated to the youth of America.

The consecration of this shrine, scheduled to be held on June 17, deserves to be made the occasion for pilgrimages of large bodies of students from representative schools and colleges.

Here, in this frontier settlement of New Salem, Lincoln spent his college days. The now restored physical environment, in which his incomparable character was shaped, is at the same time a monument to the never-vanishing pioneering spirit of man—the spirit so nobly incarnated by Lincoln.

At a time when the youth of the country is being taught that the disappearance of the American frontier has limited the opportunities for the coming generation, the new shrine will serve to remind the nation of the inexhaustible resources of the Lincoln character.

Let the restored village of New Salem be a new kind of Lincoln monument.

Let it ever remain a monument to the genius of America and to the youthful pioneering spirit of this nation.

Saluting the Flag

A FOURTEEN - year - old Cambridge boy, son of a WPA worker, refuses to salute the American flag and is expelled from school. Thus the allegiance controversy of a year ago is revived.

The youth, whose parents came to this country 15 years ago from Nova Scotia, says that he is an ordained minister of a sect, several of whose members are conscientiously opposed to flag saluting.

He does not seem able to realize that the national emblem he chooses to ignore is the symbol of all the liberty that he enjoys.

Few will agree with his contention that allegiance to the Deity prevents a person from making an outward show of reverence to the flag of civil government.

Most Americans worship God, pray to Him and ask His help, protection and guidance.

Most Americans do not worship the flag in the sense that they worship God. They honor the flag, show it the gratitude and love that they would show to a father or mother.

A pledge of devotion and respect to Old Glory never has and never will interfere with religious belief.

Rather, as long as Old Glory waves, backed by the loyalty and affection of all her children, religious belief will continue to enjoy a freedom possible in no other country in the world.

Support The Governor

GOVERNOR HURLEY'S determination to have the pre-primary convention system abolished merits praise.

In his inaugural address he pledged himself to repeal this useless legislation. In office he backs up that pledge with action.

His is the stand of a statesman and those in the House and Senate who have a statesman's conception of the duties of public office will support him regardless of party.

Obviously, the claims of some political leaders that "pre-primaries are the only means of obtaining a balanced ticket by giving representation to racial groups" are hypocrisy.

What these men know and ought to say is that the convention law, in theory and in practice, is nothing more than a POLITICAL TOOL for POLITICAL MACHINES.

When Governor Hurley tells us "pre-primaries are wholly wasteful, thoroughly unnecessary and completely undemocratic," he is supported both by facts and by the people's sad experience with this machine-rule type of legislation.

To continue pre-primaries and to keep on spending $300,000 every other year that the State can ill afford to spend will discredit Senators and Representatives in the eyes of the people.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

O. O. McIntyre

New York, May 21—Thoughts while strolling: Irving Berlin usually looks as though he had just lost his best friend. No modern heating can compare to the blazing open fire. Speaking voices that have that certain something: Leslie Howard, Shirley Temple, Edgar Bergen and A. L. Alexander.

Radio red light: Too much self-exploitation among artists. Few singers float away on a high note with more ease than Helen Jepson. Rainbow get-ups: Ham Fisher's. Nobody has burst out in a pearl gray derby since Raymond Hitchcock went up the long, long trail.

When we used to drive over a high culvert the buggy springs seemed to say: Serge Obelensky. After the surfeit of recent cockeyed poetry, I'll have a little of Ella Wheeler Wilcox's for mine. Who remembers when the Algonquin boys used to sneer at all the literary newcomers?

Rhyme: Irving Caesar has a funny beezer. Hope Hampton's hair is the shade of that new pink grape fruit from Texas. Memory: Art Hickman playing his whistle accompaniment to his tune "Whispering." And deserved screen come-backs: Jack Haley's. Major Bowes' handy-Andy lady: Bessie Mack.

Sudden thought: Never saw a white-haired waiter. Handsome gentlemen out of the old C. D. Gibson drawings: Hay Phyfe, H. T. Webster and James Montgomery Flagg. I often itch to bust into one of those "Cutting by Appointment Only" barbershops without appointment, just to see if they'd take me on.

Vagaries of a vapid mind: I never see Dudley Field Malone without thinking of those English types who so delight in the aroma of Harris tweed, harness leather and the grain of a good briar pipe. The sort who ride up horseback to the village pub at noon for a nip of ale and bitters and to get their copy of the day's Thunderer from The City.

The old Waldorf waged war for years to dragoon the "We Boys" confidence sharks out of Peacock Alley and never quite cleared the corridors. A derbied house detective was frequently called to Spanish walk some roaming rapscallion to the revolving door for a push across the sidewalk.

The old Waldorf bar was the hangout of the Gondorf brothers, most famous of the "We Boys." They had the silver marcel of Kyrle Bellew, the sedate dress of an old school banker and pontifical manner of a Schwab. Few who came afoul their wiley gab escaped with bankroll unclipped.

A police lieutenant tells me there are not many confidence boys today. And the approach is different. They make contacts through ladies who may or may not be their wives—smartly habited and living in de luxe hotels with social eclat.

Said the police official: "Anyone who accepts an invitation to tea from a woman he does not know well is inviting a stock scheme gyp."

In the good gone days when a market-wise world seized at every rainbow of promise there was a telephone stock salesman after me every morning, bursting with tidings of quick profits. Many times I was tempted to hang up in his ear, but he was affable and I'm such a softie. At the end of several years he gave me a mild rooking—50 shares of stock in a non-existent oil well in a Patagonian wilderness. He delivered it himself and I met him, a brisk sophomoric type with hair embrosse.

Time skeedaddled on and the other day I met him face to face across the counter of a neighborhood store. We both bowed, looked confused and flushed neatly.

Ann Pennington is another of the comparative old-timers to accept the jousting of time with head up. Her name, that once spread across theater fronts where the Follies and Scandals held high jinkeres, now twinkles inauspiciously amid the jinkle jumble of cabaret performers in the stretch of cafes along West 52d street.

I never go to a fire without thinking of the rebuff of my first reporting days in New York. With my police card jauntily in my hat I walked casually through the lines on West 28 street and was given a shove by a cop that unroofed my hat and clittered my teeth. Lifting myself up haughtily, I approached him and announced with much grandeur: "I happen to be a newspaperman." To which he replied: "Happen is the word, buddy."

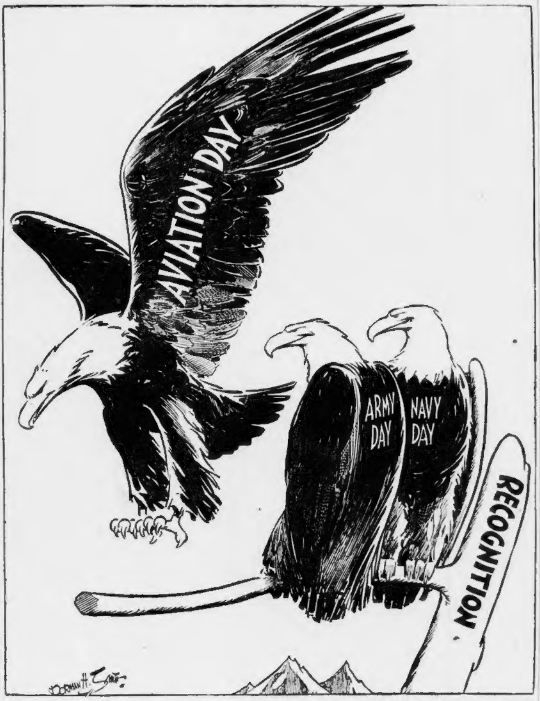
Move Over

Copyright, 1937, by American Newspapers, Inc.



Both the Army and the Navy—as well as the Merchant Marine—will be glad to "move over" and share with AVIATION the honor of having its own national day.

In fact, the Shanley Bill to designate May 28 as National Aviation Day is BACKED by the Army and Navy Union.

How members of Congress feel about it was evidenced by the action of the House of Representatives in passing the bill WITHOUT OBJECTION and sending it to the Senate for prompt action.

America now ranks SIXTH among world Powers in aviation strength.

America should rank FIRST. That will be the theme of National Aviation Day.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

The annual report of the American Crystal Sugar Company, which operates beet sugar factories in California, Montana, Colorado, Nebraska, Iowa and Minnesota, shows its net earnings during the last fiscal year were approximately $1,800,000 and its tax bill was $780,000. Earnings were at the rate of $3.80 a share of common stock and TAXES AMOUNTED TO $2.14 ON EACH SHARE.

The tax racket is being carried to dangerous limits when an industry has to give the tax collectors $2.14 for every $3.80 it earns.

President W. N. Wilds of the American Crystal Company states that, not including processing taxes for the previous year, the company's taxes increased approximately 86 per cent in the last year. He remarks that this "forcefully reflects the trend of tax legislation." It also shows government in a sort of Robin Hood role, robbing those who are working and producing to give to those who are loafing.

Every business enterprise, in reporting to its stockholders, should call attention to the tax burden it bears. It should not stop with giving the total amount of taxes paid. It should compare taxes per share of stock with the earnings per share. If the majority of the American people ever can be made to understand the enormity of the tax bills collected from them, INDIRECTLY AS WELL AS DIRECTLY, pressure of public sentiment will compel political tax spenders to give the relief they will not give voluntarily.

The idea of "soaking" business and industry appeals to the unthinking. Demagogs harp on the exploitation of the workers by big business and rich and greedy corporations.

But if there were no big and prosperous business and industrial enterprises in this country, millions of people who now are earning a comfortable living would be in the breadlines. During the depression American business and industry paid out in wages and dividends 25 billion dollars more than they took in. They were able to do that because they had had the foresight to accumulate surpluses against just such a "rainy day."

If this 25 billions had not been available from private sources, relief demands upon public purses would have been increased enormously. And instead of a national debt of 35 billions we might now be staggering under a national debt of 50 or 60 billions.

There are inequalities in the distribution of wealth. And most people would like to see this situation corrected. But if the tax scheme of redistributing earnings is carried too far, it discourages the creation of new wealth. Redistribution alone will not solve the problem. THERE MUST BE MORE WEALTH CREATED TO HAVE ENOUGH TO DIVIDE. Private individuals who have to run all the risks of losses are not going to take the chance of losing what they now have if rapacious taxspenders are standing by all the time to hog the lion's share of any profits which may be made.

According to New York State police, Lester Brockelhurst, 23-year-old ex-Sunday school teacher, has confessed he committed a series of robberies and three murders in the last six weeks. If you guess that he also is a paroled offender, you are correct. In 1935, he was sent to reformatory in Illinois for an armed robbery in Chicago. Like thousands of others who are granted clemency, he was paroled without having reformed. We may not do such a fine job catching criminals in this country, but our law enforcement agencies are a lot better at catching than at keeping desperadoes behind the bars.

From his pictures, Brockelhurst doesn't look like a bad man or a killer. He appears to be a mild, inoffensive sort. But appearances are never more deceiving than when you try to determine from a man's looks whether he is a decent citizen or a criminal. That probably helps to fool parole boards. They get the notion that because a man looks decent and behaves himself in prison he has reformed. No man deserves much credit for good behavior in a reformatory or penitentiary.

One of the most perplexing problems in punishing traffic law offenders is the drinking driver. In many cases, it is impossible to determine whether he should be classed as a drunken driver. Dr. R. H. Harger, professor of biochemistry and toxicology at the University of Indiana, told the Midwest Safety Conference at Chicago that three ounces of whisky—the equivalent of one and one-half highballs or two "shots"—make the ordinary person an unsafe driver.

The alcoholic content of the blood can be determined. But the effects of alcohol vary with the individual. And it makes a difference whether a man has been drinking on a full or an empty stomach. Whether the drinker realizes the alcohol he has taken is affecting him also is important. If he does, it may have the effect of making him more cautious. But too many times the motorist with a few drinks under his belt is stimulated to drive faster than his eyes and brain and muscles can act.

The Marry-Go-Round

By Helen Rowland

Every now and then, some university threatens to establish a prepatory school for prospective husbands and wives, with courses in all the domestic arts—except that most important one, the art of flattery or passing the "apple-sauce."

Yet what we need in the home is not more gadgets and labor-saving devices, but more bouquets and mutual expressions of admiration and approval.

A school that would emphasize this burning need would prevent hundreds of divorces and convince some of our best attorneys that the practice of law is a profession and not a highly diverting avocation.

Those medieval monarchs had the right idea. They PAID courtiers and favorites to flatter them and laugh at their jokes and nourish their vanity and self-complacency.

No wonder they thought that they were divinely sent.

Everybody needs somebody to keep up his (or her) courage and self-confidence to help him bluff himself.

Modern Washington

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

There is, in Washington, an architectural frustration or conflict comparable to the head-on clash of the simple codes of Justinian with the complexities of modern statecraft. Graeco-Roman architecture was all right for Graco-Roman ideas of government, but it plays not too much for the vast proliferation of bureaus, commissions, boards and whatnot which make up the national government of today.

Edwin C. Hill

If the expansion continues much longer, clerks will have to park their cars about 10 miles from their job. There were 96,000 government employes in Washington at the peak of the World War Federal employment. There are now 140,000.

The plan of Major L'Enfant, which the planners and builders carry out through the years, develops a gracious and beautiful city—providing you are thinking of just architecture, and not people and parking space and getting work done and things like that. The late French Strother, writer and editor and secretary to Herbert Hoover, made many gloomy predictions about the conflict between aesthetics and utility which would confront Washington in a few years.

A LEARNED MAN

Mr. Strother was a man of taste and culture, and no one was more appreciative of the stately unity of the L'Enfant plan than he. But he insisted that the exigencies of modern governmental business were such that only modern architecture would serve them.

"And that means skyscrapers," he said. "Skyscrapers can provide us beauty in our own tradition and culture, and they release ground for parking, traffic and parks. Like many other persons, I had great misgivings about New York's Rockefeller Center, but as it came through, with magnificent architectural unity, one could see that here was the inevitable answer to problems of highly concentrated mass work and enterprise.

"Impressive beauty on both mass and line is attainable in skyscrapers, and they are distinctly American. Jefferson, Hamilton and L'Enfant didn't foresee the automobile and the space problems of traffic and parking. Certainly, they would not have spawned spreading, space-eating buildings if they had."

Perhaps that's all water over the wheel, or, rather, concrete through the mixer, but as each new building is projected in Washington, the problem of how workers are to get to it, and get away from it, is an always attendant headache. Immediately pertinent is a proposed new wing of the postoffice building along Pennsylvania avenue to Fourteenth street. This will demolish two fairly modern, eight-story buildings, the Southern Railway building and the District building, the Washington City Hall.

It will be an impressive architectural detail and, of course, couldn't be littered up with cars. But what about parking space for the workers in the new wing? The only answer they can find is, underground parking, in a huge excavation under the patio. So, boiling it down, we're still Graeco-Roman, but we have to go underground to stay that way.

MOLE-HOLE PARKING

Seven stories is the height limit for the new buildings. The L'Enfant plan, with its radiating avenues from the Capitol hub, provides, of course, for vistas and open spaces. There's no chance for beauty in architecture if you jam buildings together, no matter how effective the design of each. So, every impulsion, as long as height is limited, is toward greater and greater diffusion, at a time when the greatest possible concentration—plus parking space—is the imperative demand.

There was an amusing story in the paper the other day about a citizen getting lost in the stupendous Commerce Building. It can easily happen, not only in this but in several other buildings. Messenger boys in Washington get to be Daniel Boones who can find their way readily through a wilderness of tile and bronze and mosaic. But let me warn you from my own bitter experience—if you have business down there, pick up an Indian guide and carry a compass.

With all this, the magnificent new buildings do not begin to take care of all the governmental agencies. Rural Electrification is away up on Massachusetts avenue. The Federal Deposit Insurance is in the National Press Building. Railroad Administration is on Eighth street; the Reconstruction Finance is in the old Commerce Building; the Tennessee Valley Authority is in an old war-time emergency structure on the Mall; the Resettlement Administration is spread out over 27 scattered offices. Boards and commissions encroach on departments, such as the Federal Communications Commission taking a thumping big space allotment in the Post Office Building.

COVER WIDE AREA

They could, of course, build skyscrapers on top of their Graeco-Roman buildings. The architectural anachronism would be no more startling than the blend of traditional and ultra-modern theories of government, and perhaps would quite faithfully portray the Weshington of today.

But, all in all, there's a reason why skyscrapers wouldn't do for Capital architecture. Anybody who ever has ridden in a government elevator can give you an answer. A ready efficient elevator is something that no government in the world seems able to achieve. It may be a design of Providence in keeping government down to earth.

On the Nail

By Benjamin DeCasseres

At Sarajevo, Serbia, in July, 1914, a youth killed the archduke and archduchess of Austria. The shots he fired also killed 10,000,000 men and maimed 20,000,000 more, besides revolutionizing the political and economic life of nearly one-half of the human race.

The other day a gendarme in a small town in King Zog's Albania attempted to unveil a woman in the street. He was following the order of the king that women should no longer go veiled in public. The husband of the woman shot the gendarme dead.

The "reactionaries" accuse Zog of trying to foist Western ways on them. The "radicals" are strong for King Zog and his attempts to "modernize" his one million subjects.

Maybe Zog himself sets a bad example, for while he was regularly elected President in 1925 he had himself proclaimed King in 1928. That looks like backsliding instead of advancing.

There has always been a belief that there is a little prank-god at work in this world. Shakespeare called him Puck. The Germans call him Til Owl-Glass. The French call him Pierrot. Edgar Allen Poe put him in one of his most fascinating stories and called him the Imp of the Perverse. We Americans call him Jinx.

According to the newspapers, Jinx has been up to some curious pranks the last few days.

Jinx was in George Billing of Elmira, N. Y., when he looked behind him and his head refused to move back in place. Jinx "slipped a vertebra" in his neck.

Jinx led three boys to discover $4500 floating around nice and pretty in the Hudson river. But it was all counterfeit. A vile trick for Jinx to play in these not over-flush times.

Jinx came down the chimney of the house of Dennis King, stage and screen star, in Long Island. He caused a servant to put $16,000 worth of jewels in the ash-pile, where they were partly incinerated.

But it was a humane Jinx that made Harold Cohen walk up to a New York policeman and surrender his pistol, fearing he might hold up some one.

But what kind of a Jinx was it that made Wade Millman, 88, of Coatesville, Ind., preach a funeral sermon over his non-existent corpse?

All of us have this prank-god concealed in us. Looking back on our lives we see many absurd things that we have done. That was little old Til Owl-Glass at work!

The penitentiary of the City of Mexico has become a strictly union shop.

The prisoners will work union hours, be paid the union scale—and, best of all, they will be compelled to pay 40 per cent of their earnings to those who suffered from their crimes.

In war—even in civil war—we are not as barbarous as we used to be. We protect our works of art.

Warring nations have come to look on the products of man's genius as more sacred than life. Maybe because men can be replaced, but the works of Goya and Velasquez, for instance, cannot.

The great masterpieces in the Prado in Madrid are being removed to the Louvre in Paris. During the World War the masterpieces in the Louvre were stored in the cellar. When Napoleon went into Italy with his armies he "borrowed" tons of Italian art, sent them to Paris—and forgot to return them.

One of the greatest of all historic crimes was the burning of the Alexandrian Library, in Egypt, in 642 by the Calif Omar. It contained 700,000 volumes, the brains and genius of the ancient world—lost forever.

Could this possibly be repeated if some day Nazi or Marxian fanatics were to descend on the Museums and libraries of Europe and destroy all "Non-Aryan" and "Non-Marxian" art and literature? Such a calamity would set civilization back to the age of Attila and Genghis Khan. But fanatics, even the modern breed, are capable of anything. They are BRAIN HYENAS.
